Democrats Get Behind Aid Policy

Senator Douglas Asks Senate Support Plan to Send Soldiers to Europe

Speeches Prepared

Connally, McFarland and Others to Enter Debate

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said today he would be glad to talk with Senator Taft, or any other member of what he called the minority party, on foreign policy matters.

Answering questions at a news conference, Acheson also told reporters he thought failure of the United Nations to solve the problem of the Korean crisis would naturally diminish its prestige and power. But he characterized as an overstatement a suggestion that a U.N. failure to take strong action now would wreck the organization.

Taft, Republican policy chairman chief in the Senate, has been carrying on a continuous criticism of the administration's foreign policy.

Democrats Rally

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator McFarland of Arizona, the Democratic leader, and Senators Douglas (D-Ill.), McMahon (D-Conn.) and Fulbright (D-Ark.) all went to work on speeches for the torrid foreign policy debate.

To strengthen the President's position—under vigorous attack by some Republicans — Douglas proposed the Senate act affirmatively on the question of furnishing troops for Europe and on defining similar policies in Asia.

"We should affirm the preliminary agreements made at the Brussels conference for the establishment of a European defense force," Douglas said. "I think the President acted under his constitutional powers in that instance and I believe the Senate will agree."

Would Reverse Wherry

Douglas said he wants to reverse the "negative" approach taken by Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, in a resolution which would ban the sending of additional American ground troops to Europe without prior approval from Congress.

Mr. Truman has said he doesn't need any further authority from Congress to commit more ground forces to Europe. He didn't touch directly on the question in his "State of the Union" message Monday.

However, Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) told the National Press Club yesterday the administration concept of operations under the North Atlantic Treaty includes "a complete international army." He added that "anybody who says we shouldn't send a soldier to Europe is accused of repudiating the Atlantic Pact."

Asked to Commit

"Now we are asked to commit ourselves without further consideration . . . not only to a large army to be established and stationed in Europe as a part of a great international army, but also to assuming the commanding position in that army—the initiative for the entire army," he said.

Council Adopts 1951 Budget And Fixes City Tax Rate at $48.56

Democrats Make Effort to Delay Passage; Session Is Stormy

The Common Council in recessed session last night adopted by an 8-5 party vote a city budget of $1,479,344.69 fixing the tax rate of $48.56 as set by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk's revision to include a $240 cost-of-living bonus for city employes.

Strict party voting voided a move by the minority for another recessed meeting following heated argument in which Republicans held that fair time had been given for airing the budget and Democrats asked for further assessment study, a few minor cuts, and a bonus for city laboratory employes.

Bruck Calls It Unfair

Alderman Charles Cole (D), 13th Ward, who as member of the finance committee, submitted the minority report, and handled the weight of party argument, suggested at least another week for the mayor's study of proposals, but Eighth Ward Alderman Joseph Bruck (R), and Benjamin Storms (R), Second ward, stressed that the budget had been available since December, and Bruck declared:

"I think it is unfair when 8,000 tax bills have to be out by Feb. 1 to ask another recess."

Tension Is High

The meeting was one of almost solid tension and argument and at one point when Fourth Ward Alderman John Buboltz (D), attempted to draw Alderman-at-large Joseph Kelly into the dispute, the president of the council declined and said:

"I was elected to preside over the council in an impartial manner, and I think you'll agree that I've always done so. You are the duly elected representative of the ward and I've always given you

Questioned in Torso Slaying

Air Support Is Reported Held Off by Weather; Counterattacks Beaten Off

Biggest in Days

Counteroffensive Said to Be on Largest Scale of Recent Period

Tokyo, Jan. 10 (AP) — A small tank-led American and French force fought through a crust of Red Koreans today into the key road-rail center of Wonju. The allies found the town empty.

Allied intelligence said, however, the Reds have 200 tanks and 500 Chinese planes poised farther north for a big push into the heart of South Korea. It said the Communists have massed a force of possibly 280,000 troops for a new offensive.

The allies had abandoned Wonju to the Reds only Monday after two days of fighting for the gateway town to South Korea's interior.

Fighting swirled in new fallen snow throughout the Wonju area. Censorship obscured the sharp details but permitted disclosure in a field dispatch that the U. S. Second Division supported by French units was attacking strong enemy forces in the area.

A brief A.P. field dispatch from the second division front indicated the Korean Reds had counterattacked in force. Timed at 10:43 p. m. Wednesday (8:43 a. m. EST), it said that an attempt to outflank U.N. forces was beaten back. The high point of the enemy attack came at 3 p. m. (1 a. m. EST), the dispatch said. The allied artillery barrage was stepped up greatly but bad weather held off air support for the second day.

Are Still in City

At nightfall a small American task force still occupied Wonju, 45 miles south of the border in the center of the Korean peninsula.

A tank-supported company of the Second Division swept into the town from the southeast after beating off fierce Red Korean counterblows.

A second column driving up from the south brushed off Red counter-attacks mounted by six battalions and occupied the southern sector of hills looking down on the scorched town. This second division unit was only two miles from Wonju.

There were no Reds in the city, A.P. Correspondent William Barnard reported from the front.

The American-French assault teams launched their assault to retake Wonju in a swirling snowstorm Tuesday. They fought through a hail of enemy mortar and small arms fire.

Wonju controls a web of roads leading into the heart of South Korea.

In Contact With Reds

"We are in contact with North Koreans now and we intend to give them hell," the allied commander said as the attack started.

Correspondent Barnard said the battle scene was like a Christmas card picture. He added:

"There was the soft white valley, majestic frosted mountains and a peaceful looking road . . . snow sifted down.

"But murderous enemy fire from foothills . . . swept the valley and the road. The thunder of allied artillery rolled continuously and echoed through the valley and around the peaks.

"Small arms fire crackled in-

Marshall Urges Draft at 18 To Build Fighting Forces

Defense Secretary Also Comes Out for U.M.T. as Best Way to Meet Needs for Service; Favors 18-Year-Olds for Combat

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall urged Congress today to approve a draft of 18 year olds for 27 months service to build up the nation's fighting forces.

He told a Senate armed services subcommittee that a system of "universal military service and training represents what I believe is the best way to meet our immediate need for enlarged combat forces and at the same time, to provide en enduring base for our military strength."

Marshall, former army chief of staff and former secretary of state, was the first witness at what Chairman Lyndon Johnson (D.-Tex.) of the subcommittee said would be an overall hearing on manpower problems.

Under the present draft law, boys of 18 are required to register but they cannot be drafted until they reach age 19. Their service after induction is limited to 21 months.

The present Draft Law expires next July 9. The Senate subcommittee hearings are aimed at developing such questions as how long the law should be extended and with what changes.

Service, Then Reserve

Marshall said he felt 18 year olds should be called for actual service and combat.

"The program proposes that young men reaching the age of 18 fulfill their obligation for the nation's defense by entering the armed forces for 27 months of service and training," Marshall said. "Immediately thereafter they would enroll for a specified term in a reserve component."

In his State of the Union message on Monday, President Truman called for extension and revision of the Draft Law but did not say what changes he wanted.

Mr. Truman did call for a rapid buildup of the armed forces to a strength of about 3,500,000 men and women. At the same time he said:

"We do not know how long Communist aggression will threaten the world."

Lenthy Extension Planned

This led some lawmakers to suggest an indefinite extension and tightening up of the present Selective Service Act, now due to expire July 9. Some even talked about an extension of 10 to 20 years.

Bridges, senior Republican on the Armed Services Committee, told a reporter he doubts Congress would approve such an extension.

"I think we should extend Selective Service for two or three years at the most," he said. "That would give Congress a chance to re-

Says Controls Are Premature Now

Senator Aiken Declares They Would Create Food Shortages

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Senator Aiken said today price controls on meat or any other food at this time would create shortages and generally be "a bad mistake."

The Vermont senator, senior Republican on the Senate Agriculture Committee, said food prices "are not generally at a level that warrants controls."

Increases which have occurred during the last few months have been caused at least in part "by the administration's constant hints that price control is coming," Aiken said.

As he voiced these views, the nation's livestock industry sought to convince government officials that price controls on meat, instead of putting plenty on consumer tables at favorable prices, would bring back black markets, backyard slaughtering and shortages.

Packers Confer

Spokesmen for more than 20 organizations representing producers of beef cattle, hogs, sheep and lambs and organized meat slaughterers, processors and packers arranged to lay their arguments before a closed conference today, at the Agriculture Department.

Officials who agreed to listen included Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, Economic Stabilization Administrator Alan Valentine and Price Director Michael V. Di Salle.

For the meat industry, the task appeared to be one of changing the mind of Valentine and Disalle on the need for price controls. Valentine said Monday the government would attempt to control meat prices as soon as possible. He indicated such a move might be accompanied by rationing to cut demand.

Strong Demand for Meat

The controls conference today came on the heels of a department report forecasting somewhat higher meat and livestock prices during the next two months. This prediction was based on prospects that marketings of meat animals will decline in the face of a continuing strong demand.

Senator Aiken told a reporter that in his opinion "there is no great clamor throughout the country for either wage or price controls on anything." He said he feels that way despite reports to the contrary regarding prices.

Predicts Large Force

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 10 (AP)—The Association of American Colleges was told yesterday by Rep. Dewey Short (R.-Mo.) that the nation's armed forces might reach the 4,500,000 figure by the summer of 1952. However, former Secretary of the Army, Gordon Gray said manpower requirements can best be judged by military leaders. Short hinted at the 4,500,000 manpower figure and said Washington was rife with such rumors attributed to "informed sources." "It is inescapable that every 19-year-old youngster, physically capable of military service, must serve," Short said. He added that the term "physically capable" meant, in his opinion, taking men "below acceptability standards even of World War 2."

Katrine Gun Club Forms Redi Men To Help in Defense

At its annual meeting last night, Lake Katrine Rod & Gun Club formed a company of Redi Men to assist in the Civilian Defense Program.

The company will work as a part of the auxiliary police on call from Howard Shurter, director of Civilian Defense in Ulster county.

On short notice the Redi Men will move to vital spots as guards, patrolling bridges, water supplies and other areas likely to be attacked.

Men of the company, already familiar with the use of firearms, and a goodly number of them veterans of both world wars, will start training as soon as they receive orders from Director Shurter.

The committee named at last night's meeting of the gun club to handle the Civilian Defense project consists of Savio (Sam) LaGuardia, chairman; Harold Macholdt and Lester Hotaling.

Hunt Still On for Murder Victim's Suit in County

Some Blood-Stained Pieces of Clothing Found in Kerhonkson Area by Emil Blume

Investigation of the Ontario county hitch-hiker murder of which Frank Webster, 21, of Shortsville is accused, still centers in Ulster county where authorities are seeking a suit of clothes of the murdered man, Charles G. Lennox, 52, president of a Rochester engraving firm, whose nude body was found December 6 on a snowbank near Rushville.

Last Saturday Webster was brought to Ulster county to retrace the route which he took as he fled from the scene of the crime in the Lennox car.

Several pieces of blood stained clothing which had been found on the Queens highway, a mile off Route 209, on December 11 by Emil Blume of Kerhonkson, were identified as belonging to Lennox and Webster. Local authorities still are seeking a suit of clothes of the murdered man which Webster is said to have confessed disposing of in this area.

Sheriff on Case

When the blood stained clothing was found by Blume it was turned over to Deputy Sheriff Gilman at Kerhonkson and next day given over to Undersheriff Clayton W. Vredenburgh who with County Investigator Leonard Belmore conducted an investigation as to the ownership.

Announcement of the arrest of Webster at gun point in the Utica railroad station and his later statement that he had killed Lennox and stolen his car, led to the identification of the clothing found here. Webster was then brought to Ulster county to retrace his route in an endeavor to locate the remaining clothing. Anyone finding a suit of clothes in the area of High Falls, Stone Ridge, Accord or along the Queens highway is requested to notify County Investigator Belmore. The Ontario county officials are extremely anxious to locate the clothing.

Say He Admits Beating Man

According to Ontario county officials Webster has admitted beating Lennox with a tire iron and wrench and then strangling him on December 5, after being picked up as a hitch hiker, in or-

No New Licenses

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The New York State Liquor Authority will grant no new liquor licenses between Jan. 23 and March 31. The moratorium was announced yesterday to give the SLA time to survey present conditions and practices in the trade. A spokesman said it might lead to a diversion of scarce materials from liquor store construction to defense uses.

Police Guard Kept Over Donofrio in Brooklyn Slaying

Housepainter Is Charged With Homicide in Death of Woman in November

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—An around-the-clock police guard was placed last night over the cell of Pasquale Donofrio, 38, who authorities said admitted strangling and carving up his common-law wife last November.

However, police did not say whether he had threatened suicide.

After his reported confession early yesterday, detectives had removed his shoe strings, necktie, and belt in a normal precautionary measure.

Donofrio was arraigned yesterday in Brooklyn Felony Court and held without bail for a hearing Friday.

The housepainter was charged with homicide in the death of Dorothy Martin, 37, the faded one-time Hudson valley apple blossom contestant.

He claimed, police said, that the strangulation was accidental when he tried to quiet her during a drinking spree in their room.

The torso of Miss Martin, daughter of the Saugerties, postmaster, was found Dec. 4 in two suitcases in dime lockers in the Long Island Railroad's Brooklyn terminal.

Dr. M. E. Marten, deputy chief medical examiner, said no one had yet claimed the body.

Truman Will Call For Tax Raises to Balance Budget

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said today President Truman will call on Congress this week to raise taxes enough to balance the budget.

Snyder refused to give any figure whatsoever on how much taxes that would involve—or how much the budget will be for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

There were indications elsewhere that a tax hike of perhaps $20,000,000,000 or more—a jump of nearly 40 per cent in present taxes—would be necessary.

The treasury chief told reporters the President will lay down a full "pay-as-you-go" policy in his economic report Friday and his budget message next Monday. This, Snyder said, will be fol-

Bills Would Relay Hospital Funds to Communities

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—Governor Dewey's administration today sponsored two bills in the Legislature to relay to communities at least $7,000,000 annually in federal funds for hospitalized welfare clients.

At the same time, the Republican state administration continued its battle with Oscar Ewing, President Truman's Federal Security administrator, over what Dewey calls a threat to withhold from the state U. S. financial aid for dependent children and disabled persons on relief.

A Dewey administration resolution, introduced in the state Senate and Assembly, would urge Congress to "prohibit the Federal Security agency from imposing arbitrary administrative requirements" on the distribution of federal welfare funds within the Empire State.

Dewey charges Ewing has insisted that New York state change its program of distributing such aid to conform to a "single standard" throughout the state. Such aid now is given out in varying proportions in relation to the differing needs of relief clients in various parts of the state.

Ewing has denied he threatened to withhold such funds.

Robert T. Lansdale, state welfare commissioner, has reported to Dewey that the state risks the loss of millions of dollars in aid if it does not adopt a "single standard" in conformance with federal requirements.

The federal-state controversy stemmed from changes in the Federal Social Security Law, which provide new federal aid for disabled indigents, and broader federal aid for dependent children and their responsible relatives.

The two bills sponsored by Dewey's administration would pass along to localities the new federal contributions for aged, blind and disabled welfare clients in hospitals. The new federal asistance would provide up to 45 per cent of the cost of such care.

A Dewey administration spokesman said another bill would be introduced later to cover dependent children and their responsible relatives.

Until the social security law was changed, aid to hospitalized welfare clients consisted of federal, state and local funds, allocated for a maximum six-month period. After that, the relief client became solely a county charge.

The state pays 80 per cent of the total cost of home relief, and localities pay the remaining 20 per cent.

Correspondent Declares Part of Europe Lacks Will to Arm Again, in Self-Defense

(Much of the current Great Debate deals with complex problems of re-arming western Europe and the extent to which United States collaboration will help find solutions for meeting the challenge of Soviet Russia. A first-hand view of these problems is given by J. Wes Gallagher of The Associated Press executive staff, who has just returned from foreign service assignments spanning the last 10 years of European history. The accompanying article is the first of two stories summing up his personal impressions.

(Gallagher first went overseas in 1940, arriving just in time for the German invasion of Denmark and Norway. Subsequently he covered the war in the Balkans, captained AP frontline teams in North Africa and on the western front, and organized postwar Associated Press operations in Germany. He returned recently to New York.)

By WES GALLAGHER

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Rearming Europe today is fundamentally a question of morale, not guns and planes.

A large part of Europe hasn't the will now to defend itself.

On a grand scale General Dwight D. Eisenhower is in the position of a football coach trying to install the "will to win" in his team.

Eisenhower must try to install the "will to fight." Without it the United States can pour arms into Europe from now until doomsday without the slightest result.

This colors the way Europeans look on the east-west conflict and the way Americans look at it.

Europeans are no less conscious than Americans of the menace of Soviet aggression. The vast majority of French, Germans, British, Italians and other Europeans have no more liking than Americans for communism.

Rulers Are Disliked

They dislike the Kremlin rulers, poke jibes at Stalin privately and wish Russia never existed.

But they don't see that they can do much about the situation except commit suicide. And this is more than a figure of speech; I know Germans who keep poisons on hand and swear they will take them if overrun by the Soviet army again.

From the Baltic to Spain Europe has been ravaged and bled white by recent wars. The torrents of bloodshed touching every family have drained away that intangible called morale.

They know that any Soviet attack must be met in the heart of Europe. Whether the attack is held or not they know their homes will be devastated by battle and bombings. They and their sons and daughters will die by the thousands.

By experience they know that there are no winners in war. Even if they are on the winning side they know they will be too prostrate to enjoy it.

Still Believe in Freedom

They still believe in freedom and wish with all their hearts they can keep it but have difficulty convincing themselves they can do it.

They want to stop the Russians but without "morale" the dangers and sacrifices of rearming seem almost too much to bear.

There are scores of other fac-

Democrats Get Behind Aid Policy

Speeches Prepared

Connally, McFarland and Others to Enter Debate

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson said today he would be glad to talk with Senator Taft, or any other member of what he called the minority party, on foreign policy matters.

Answering questions at a news conference, Acheson also told reporters he thought failure of the United Nations to solve the problem of the Korean crisis would naturally diminish its prestige and power. But he characterized as an overstatement a suggestion that a U.N. failure to take strong action now would wreck the organization.

Taft, Republican policy chairman chief in the Senate, has been carrying on a continuous criticism of the administration's foreign policy.

Democrats Rally

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator McFarland of Arizona, the Democratic leader, and Senators Douglas (D-Ill.), McMahon (D-Conn.) and Fulbright (D-Ark.) all went to work on speeches for the torrid foreign policy debate.

To strengthen the President's position—under vigorous attack by some Republicans — Douglas proposed the Senate act affirmatively on the question of furnishing troops for Europe and on defining similar policies in Asia.

"We should affirm the preliminary agreements made at the Brussels conference for the establishment of a European defense force," Douglas said. "I think the President acted under his constitutional powers in that instance and I believe the Senate will agree."

Would Reverse Wherry

Douglas said he wants to reverse the "negative" approach taken by Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican floor leader, in a resolution which would ban the sending of additional American ground troops to Europe without prior approval from Congress.

Mr. Truman has said he doesn't need any further authority from Congress to commit more ground forces to Europe. He didn't touch directly on the question in his "State of the Union" message Monday.

However, Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) told the National Press Club yesterday the administration concept of operations under the North Atlantic Treaty includes "a complete international army." He added that "anybody who says we shouldn't send a soldier to Europe is accused of repudiating the Atlantic Pact."

Asked to Commit

"Now we are asked to commit ourselves without further consideration . . . not only to a large army to be established and stationed in Europe as a part of a great international army, but also to assuming the commanding position in that army—the initiative for the entire army," he said.

Council Adopts 1951 Budget And Fixes City Tax Rate at $48.56

Democrats Make Effort to Delay Passage; Session Is Stormy

The Common Council in recessed session last night adopted by an 8-5 party vote a city budget of $1,479,344.69 fixing the tax rate of $48.56 as set by Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk's revision to include a $240 cost-of-living bonus for city employes.

Strict party voting voided a move by the minority for another recessed meeting following heated argument in which Republicans held that fair time had been given for airing the budget and Democrats asked for further assessment study, a few minor cuts, and a bonus for city laboratory employes.

Bruck Calls It Unfair

Alderman Charles Cole (D), 13th Ward, who as member of the finance committee, submitted the minority report, and handled the weight of party argument, suggested at least another week for the mayor's study of proposals, but Eighth Ward Alderman Joseph Bruck (R), and Benjamin Storms (R), Second ward, stressed that the budget had been available since December, and Bruck declared:

"I think it is unfair when 8,000 tax bills have to be out by Feb. 1 to ask another recess."

Tension Is High

The meeting was one of almost solid tension and argument and at one point when Fourth Ward Alderman John Buboltz (D), attempted to draw Alderman-at-large Joseph Kelly into the dispute, the president of the council declined and said:

"I was elected to preside over the council in an impartial manner, and I think you'll agree that I've always done so. You are the duly elected representative of the ward and I've always given you

Questioned in Torso Slaying

Pasquale Donofrio (left), 38-year-old housepainter, is questioned in Brooklyn headquarters, Jan. 9, by New York Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy (right) and Louis Andreozzi, assistant district attorney. Police said Donofrio confessed to Brooklyn's dime locker torso slaying in which Dorothy Martin, of Saugerties, was victim.

Hunt Still On for Murder Victim's Suit in County

Some Blood-Stained Pieces of Clothing Found in Kerhonkson Area by Emil Blume

Investigation of the Ontario county hitch-hiker murder of which Frank Webster, 21, of Shortsville is accused, still centers in Ulster county where authorities are seeking a suit of clothes of the murdered man, Charles G. Lennox, 52, president of a Rochester engraving firm, whose nude body was found December 6 on a snowbank near Rushville.

Last Saturday Webster was brought to Ulster county to retrace the route which he took as he fled from the scene of the crime in the Lennox car.

Several pieces of blood stained clothing which had been found on the Queens highway, a mile off Route 209, on December 11 by Emil Blume of Kerhonkson, were identified as belonging to Lennox and Webster. Local authorities still are seeking a suit of clothes of the murdered man which Webster is said to have confessed disposing of in this area.

Sheriff on Case

When the blood stained clothing was found by Blume it was turned over to Deputy Sheriff Gilman at Kerhonkson and next day given over to Undersheriff Clayton W. Vredenburgh who with County Investigator Leonard Belmore conducted an investigation as to the ownership.

Announcement of the arrest of Webster at gun point in the Utica railroad station and his later statement that he had killed Lennox and stolen his car, led to the identification of the clothing found here. Webster was then brought to Ulster county to retrace his route in an endeavor to locate the remaining clothing. Anyone finding a suit of clothes in the area of High Falls, Stone Ridge, Accord or along the Queens highway is requested to notify County Investigator Belmore. The Ontario county officials are extremely anxious to locate the clothing.

Say He Admits Beating Man

According to Ontario county officials Webster has admitted beating Lennox with a tire iron and wrench and then strangling him on December 5, after being picked up as a hitch hiker, in or-

No New Licenses

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The New York State Liquor Authority will grant no new liquor licenses between Jan. 23 and March 31. The moratorium was announced yesterday to give the SLA time to survey present conditions and practices in the trade. A spokesman said it might lead to a diversion of scarce materials from liquor store construction to defense uses.

Police Guard Kept Over Donofrio in Brooklyn Slaying

Housepainter Is Charged With Homicide in Death of Woman in November

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—An around-the-clock police guard was placed last night over the cell of Pasquale Donofrio, 38, who authorities said admitted strangling and carving up his common-law wife last November.

However, police did not say whether he had threatened suicide.

After his reported confession early yesterday, detectives had removed his shoe strings, necktie, and belt in a normal precautionary measure.

Donofrio was arraigned yesterday in Brooklyn Felony Court and held without bail for a hearing Friday.

The housepainter was charged with homicide in the death of Dorothy Martin, 37, the faded one-time Hudson valley apple blossom contestant.

He claimed, police said, that the strangulation was accidental when he tried to quiet her during a drinking spree in their room.

The torso of Miss Martin, daughter of the Saugerties, postmaster, was found Dec. 4 in two suitcases in dime lockers in the Long Island Railroad's Brooklyn terminal.

Dr. M. E. Marten, deputy chief medical examiner, said no one had yet claimed the body.

Truman Will Call For Tax Raises to Balance Budget

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder said today President Truman will call on Congress this week to raise taxes enough to balance the budget.

Snyder refused to give any figure whatsoever on how much taxes that would involve—or how much the budget will be for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

There were indications elsewhere that a tax hike of perhaps $20,000,000,000 or more—a jump of nearly 40 per cent in present taxes—would be necessary.

The treasury chief told reporters the President will lay down a full "pay-as-you-go" policy in his economic report Friday and his budget message next Monday. This, Snyder said, will be fol-

Details Are Blocked by Censorship

Biggest in Days

Counteroffensive Said to Be on Largest Scale of Recent Period

Tokyo, Jan. 10 (AP) — A small tank-led American and French force fought through a crust of Red Koreans today into the key road-rail center of Wonju. The allies found the town empty.

Allied intelligence said, however, the Reds have 200 tanks and 500 Chinese planes poised farther north for a big push into the heart of South Korea. It said the Communists have massed a force of possibly 280,000 troops for a new offensive.

The allies had abandoned Wonju to the Reds only Monday after two days of fighting for the gateway town to South Korea's interior.

Fighting swirled in new fallen snow throughout the Wonju area. Censorship obscured the sharp details but permitted disclosure in a field dispatch that the U. S. Second Division supported by French units was attacking strong enemy forces in the area.

A brief A.P. field dispatch from the second division front indicated the Korean Reds had counterattacked in force. Timed at 10:43 p. m. Wednesday (8:43 a. m. EST), it said that an attempt to outflank U.N. forces was beaten back. The high point of the enemy attack came at 3 p. m. (1 a. m. EST), the dispatch said. The allied artillery barrage was stepped up greatly but bad weather held off air support for the second day.

Are Still in City

At nightfall a small American task force still occupied Wonju, 45 miles south of the border in the center of the Korean peninsula.

A tank-supported company of the Second Division swept into the town from the southeast after beating off fierce Red Korean counterblows.

A second column driving up from the south brushed off Red counter-attacks mounted by six battalions and occupied the southern sector of hills looking down on the scorched town. This second division unit was only two miles from Wonju.

There were no Reds in the city, A.P. Correspondent William Barnard reported from the front.

The American-French assault teams launched their assault to retake Wonju in a swirling snowstorm Tuesday. They fought through a hail of enemy mortar and small arms fire.

Wonju controls a web of roads leading into the heart of South Korea.

In Contact With Reds

"We are in contact with North Koreans now and we intend to give them hell," the allied commander said as the attack started.

Correspondent Barnard said the battle scene was like a Christmas card picture. He added:

"There was the soft white valley, majestic frosted mountains and a peaceful looking road . . . snow sifted down.

"But murderous enemy fire from foothills . . . swept the valley and the road. The thunder of allied artillery rolled continuously and echoed through the valley and around the peaks.

"Small arms fire crackled in-

Bills Would Relay Hospital Funds to Communities

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—Governor Dewey's administration today sponsored two bills in the Legislature to relay to communities at least $7,000,000 annually in federal funds for hospitalized welfare clients.

At the same time, the Republican state administration continued its battle with Oscar Ewing, President Truman's Federal Security administrator, over what Dewey calls a threat to withhold from the state U. S. financial aid for dependent children and disabled persons on relief.

A Dewey administration resolution, introduced in the state Senate and Assembly, would urge Congress to "prohibit the Federal Security agency from imposing arbitrary administrative requirements" on the distribution of federal welfare funds within the Empire State.

Dewey charges Ewing has insisted that New York state change its program of distributing such aid to conform to a "single standard" throughout the state. Such aid now is given out in varying proportions in relation to the differing needs of relief clients in various parts of the state.

Ewing has denied he threatened to withhold such funds.

Robert T. Lansdale, state welfare commissioner, has reported to Dewey that the state risks the loss of millions of dollars in aid if it does not adopt a "single standard" in conformance with federal requirements.

The federal-state controversy stemmed from changes in the Federal Social Security Law, which provide new federal aid for disabled indigents, and broader federal aid for dependent children and their responsible relatives.

The two bills sponsored by Dewey's administration would pass along to localities the new federal contributions for aged, blind and disabled welfare clients in hospitals. The new federal asistance would provide up to 45 per cent of the cost of such care.

A Dewey administration spokesman said another bill would be introduced later to cover dependent children and their responsible relatives.

Until the social security law was changed, aid to hospitalized welfare clients consisted of federal, state and local funds, allocated for a maximum six-month period. After that, the relief client became solely a county charge.

The state pays 80 per cent of the total cost of home relief, and localities pay the remaining 20 per cent.

Correspondent Declares Part of Europe Lacks Will to Arm Again, in Self-Defense

(Much of the current Great Debate deals with complex problems of re-arming western Europe and the extent to which United States collaboration will help find solutions for meeting the challenge of Soviet Russia. A first-hand view of these problems is given by J. Wes Gallagher of The Associated Press executive staff, who has just returned from foreign service assignments spanning the last 10 years of European history. The accompanying article is the first of two stories summing up his personal impressions.

(Gallagher first went overseas in 1940, arriving just in time for the German invasion of Denmark and Norway. Subsequently he covered the war in the Balkans, captained AP frontline teams in North Africa and on the western front, and organized postwar Associated Press operations in Germany. He returned recently to New York.)

By WES GALLAGHER

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Rearming Europe today is fundamentally a question of morale, not guns and planes.

A large part of Europe hasn't the will now to defend itself.

On a grand scale General Dwight D. Eisenhower is in the position of a football coach trying to install the "will to win" in his team.

Eisenhower must try to install the "will to fight." Without it the United States can pour arms into Europe from now until doomsday without the slightest result.

This colors the way Europeans look on the east-west conflict and the way Americans look at it.

Europeans are no less conscious than Americans of the menace of Soviet aggression. The vast majority of French, Germans, British, Italians and other Europeans have no more liking than Americans for communism.

Rulers Are Disliked

They dislike the Kremlin rulers, poke jibes at Stalin privately and wish Russia never existed.

But they don't see that they can do much about the situation except commit suicide. And this is more than a figure of speech; I know Germans who keep poisons on hand and swear they will take them if overrun by the Soviet army again.

From the Baltic to Spain Europe has been ravaged and bled white by recent wars. The torrents of bloodshed touching every family have drained away that intangible called morale.

They know that any Soviet attack must be met in the heart of Europe. Whether the attack is held or not they know their homes will be devastated by battle and bombings. They and their sons and daughters will die by the thousands.

By experience they know that there are no winners in war. Even if they are on the winning side they know they will be too prostrate to enjoy it.

Still Believe in Freedom

They still believe in freedom and wish with all their hearts they can keep it but have difficulty convincing themselves they can do it.

They want to stop the Russians but without "morale" the dangers and sacrifices of rearming seem almost too much to bear.

Story Is Denied

Tokyo, Jan. 10 (AP)—General MacArthur's official spokesman today denied there were any facts to a story printed in the United States that the general had recommended withdrawal of all United Nations forces from Korea. He referred to a copyrighted story by Keyes Beech, Chicago Daily News correspondent covering MacArthur's headquarters, which said MacArthur was understood to have recommended to Washington withdrawal of all United Nations forces from Korea." Beech said he obtained his information from "authoritative sources."

DuMond, Others Are Reappointed

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—Governor Dewey has reappointed 12 state cabinet members.

tors complicating the rearming of Europe. But most of them would fade if the morale problem were settled.

This is Eisenhower's big task. Tanks and guns are no good unless the soldiers and peoples behind them have the will to fight and use them.

There are exceptions, of course, among the European nations. Great Britain can be counted on to fight bravely, as she has in the past. British and American army cooperation in Germany is wholehearted and unstinting on either side. Some of the smaller countries like the Norwegians also are prepared to stand and fight. Unfortunately they are not strong enough to tip the scales in the west's favor.

Forced to Divide

Great Britain is forced to divide her might among sea, air and land forces. She cannot make a large land contribution on the continent to deter the Russians even with American and small country aid.

European defense depends primarily on France and Germany and to a lesser extent on Italy. These are the only nations with the manpower and the strategic position among the Atlantic Pact powers to make a successful defense of the continent possible.

France is depended upon under the Atlantic Pact program to supply the bulk of the ground forces needed in Europe.

France was beaten in the war of 1870. She was virtually beaten and bled white in the 1914-1918 war. In 1940 she was overrun in six weeks and put up a resistance that at best must be described as feeble. Four years of morale-sapping occupation followed.

Can't Remove Scars

These scars cannot be removed overnight and they are still visible today. French morale is perhaps the lowest in Europe when it comes to again rearming to the hilt and making a firm stand against the Russians.

France's position is further complicated by having (1) a weak, divided government which is seldom able to hold power more than a few months and (2) an estimated six million Communists in the country.

In contrast to the other political parties the French Communists are a hard disciplined core. They are ruthless. In a crisis they probably could seriously cripple any war effort with sabotage, resistance, strikes and overt acts.

Just how large an infiltration the Communists have in the French armed forces remains to be seen. For the moment there are not many armed forces to count.

The French have three divisions in their army of occupation but only a fraction of these are ready to fight. Their present reserves in France proper are negligible and poorly equipped. The professional heart of the army is fighting in Indochina and cannot be counted on for European defense.

Will They Have Morale?

France has plans to raise an army of nearly a million in the next two or three years. Even if the west has this long, the question remains: Will these forces have the will to fight?

Italy is in a similar position. During the last war the morale of the Italian soldier was notoriously bad under fascism. No one knows whether it would be any better under democracy. There is no doubt the Italian people are war weary and politically cynical. Although the government is stable there is a large and vigorous Italian Communist party which has proven its ability to torture the country with disabling strikes when opportunity offers.

As an ex-enemy nation, Italy has been largely disarmed and it will take time and money to rebuild her armed forces.

Western Germany with its 48 million people and large reservoir of trained soldiers is eyed enviously by military men.

I have been asked frequently "is it true the Germans really do not want to fight or are they just trying to get some concessions?"

After fighting the Germans in two World Wars and having a terrible time in beating them, western nations find it difficult to believe the Germans really don't want to go back into uniform again.

People Do Not

But the fact is the people as such do not. Those particularly between the ages of 20 and 40 have had a stomach full of war. There is scarcely a family that has not lost at least two close relatives in the last war. Virtually all have lost their homes, their money and their security.

On top of this they are an occupied country, treated as second class citizens, and largely through French fears they are being asked to rearm as second class soldiers—pawns of nations that defeated them.

The Germans are also military realists. They know the sad state of western defenses in Europe, compared to the six Soviet armies that rattle their tanks in the middle of Germany along the occupation border. They know that there is no such thing as a "little" rearming such as the Atlantic Pact has thus far proposed for them.

A "little" rearming would provide no defense and only leave them at the mercy of the Russians as an "enemy," should the Soviets attack. They also know any attack would begin in the middle of Germany and devastate a country just now getting back on its feet.

There is no doubt a vote now for rearming would be overwhelmingly defeated if the west Germans were polled.

Concessions Are Sought

West German politicians are riding this anti-rearming tide to gain concessions from the west. Even if they got all the concessions they are asking it is doubtful if they could pull the voters over on their side and convince them they must arm.

Should the west become stronger, offering some protection against the threat of attack, and should the west Germans feel themselves equal partners of the western nations, they might vote to rearm. No one can say for sure.

This does not mean the Germans would favor the Russians. With millions of dead and hundreds of thousands of brothers, sons and daughters having disappeared into Russia as prisoners, the Germans hate the Soviets.

Dislike Is Spawned

It is axiomatic that the closer the Europeans are to the Russians, the more they dislike them.

Germans say if the west really wants some one to fight the Soviets they should recruit eastern Germans who live under Soviet rule. It is true that West Berlin, which is completely surrounded by the Soviet army, is the most belligerent and outspoken against them.

The Germans like the rest of the continent must be convinced that what they have is worth fighting for and if they prepare to fight they have a chance of winning without being wiped out in the process.

Under these conditions it is well not to be misled or interpret some European political statements as appeasement or collaboration with communism or just silly unjustified optimism.

It is probable the speaker does not really believe what he is saying but is like the small boy whistling in the grave yard. He hopes for the best but fears the worst.

The mouth of a river is called a delta from the triangular shape resembling the Greek letter of that name.

Hike in Bootleg Booze

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP)—Bootleg whisky has been caught in the upward spiral of the price of "consumer goods." United States Treasury Agent W. T. "And," Mr. Benson points out, "that $33.50 price applies in southern Maryland. On the eastern shore it's even higher."

Can't Remove Scars

These scars cannot be removed overnight and they are still visible today. French morale is perhaps the lowest in Europe when it comes to again rearming to the hilt and making a firm stand against the Russians.

France's position is further complicated by having (1) a weak, divided government which is seldom able to hold power more than a few months and (2) an estimated six million Communists in the country.

In contrast to the other political parties the French Communists are a hard disciplined core. They are ruthless. In a crisis they probably could seriously cripple any war effort with sabotage, resistance, strikes and overt acts.

Just how large an infiltration the Communists have in the French armed forces remains to be seen. For the moment there are not many armed forces to count.

The French have three divisions in their army of occupation but only a fraction of these are ready to fight. Their present reserves in France proper are negligible and poorly equipped. The professional heart of the army is fighting in Indochina and cannot be counted on for European defense.

Will They Have Morale?

France has plans to raise an army of nearly a million in the next two or three years. Even if the west has this long, the question remains: Will these forces have the will to fight?

Italy is in a similar position. During the last war the morale of the Italian soldier was notoriously bad under fascism. No one knows whether it would be any better under democracy. There is no doubt the Italian people are war weary and politically cynical. Although the government is stable there is a large and vigorous Italian Communist party which has proven its ability to torture the country with disabling strikes when opportunity offers.

As an ex-enemy nation, Italy has been largely disarmed and it will take time and money to rebuild her armed forces.

Western Germany with its 48 million people and large reservoir of trained soldiers is eyed enviously by military men.

I have been asked frequently "is it true the Germans really do not want to fight or are they just trying to get some concessions?"

After fighting the Germans in two World Wars and having a terrible time in beating them, western nations find it difficult to believe the Germans really don't want to go back into uniform again.

People Do Not

But the fact is the people as such do not. Those particularly between the ages of 20 and 40 have had a stomach full of war. There is scarcely a family that has not lost at least two close relatives in the last war. Virtually all have lost their homes, their money and their security.

On top of this they are an occupied country, treated as second class citizens, and largely through French fears they are being asked to rearm as second class soldiers—pawns of nations that defeated them.

The Germans are also military realists. They know the sad state of western defenses in Europe, compared to the six Soviet armies that rattle their tanks in the middle of Germany along the occupation border. They know that there is no such thing as a "little" rearming such as the Atlantic Pact has thus far proposed for them.

A "little" rearming would provide no defense and only leave them at the mercy of the Russians as an "enemy," should the Soviets attack. They also know any attack would begin in the middle of Germany and devastate a country just now getting back on its feet.

There is no doubt a vote now for rearming would be overwhelmingly defeated if the west Germans were polled.

Concessions Are Sought

West German politicians are riding this anti-rearming tide to gain concessions from the west. Even if they got all the concessions they are asking it is doubtful if they could pull the voters over on their side and convince them they must arm.

Should the west become stronger, offering some protection against the threat of attack, and should the west Germans feel themselves equal partners of the western nations, they might vote to rearm. No one can say for sure.

This does not mean the Germans would favor the Russians. With millions of dead and hundreds of thousands of brothers, sons and daughters having disappeared into Russia as prisoners, the Germans hate the Soviets.

Dislike Is Spawned

It is axiomatic that the closer the Europeans are to the Russians, the more they dislike them.

Germans say if the west really wants some one to fight the Soviets they should recruit eastern Germans who live under Soviet rule. It is true that West Berlin, which is completely surrounded by the Soviet army, is the most belligerent and outspoken against them.

The Germans like the rest of the continent must be convinced that what they have is worth fighting for and if they prepare to fight they have a chance of winning without being wiped out in the process.

Under these conditions it is well not to be misled or interpret some European political statements as appeasement or collaboration with communism or just silly unjustified optimism.

It is probable the speaker does not really believe what he is saying but is like the small boy whistling in the grave yard. He hopes for the best but fears the worst.

The mouth of a river is called a delta from the triangular shape resembling the Greek letter of that name.

Hike in Bootleg Booze

Baltimore, Jan. 10 (AP)—Bootleg whisky has been caught in the upward spiral of the price of "consumer goods." United States Treasury Agent W. T. Benson says here the curren' price for the five gallon economy size is $33.50. A like amount of powerful old character builder sold for $25 to $28 last February, Benson says. "And," Mr. Benson points out, "that $33.50 price applies in southern Maryland. On the eastern shore it's even higher."

Suribachi Hero Wounded in Korea

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP) — One of the famous little band of Marines who raised the flag on Mt. Suribachi, Iwo Jima, is a casualty of the Korean war.

A casualty list issued today contained the name of Capt. Harold G. Schrier of Chilson, N. Y. He is wounded.

Schrier, then a 1st lieutenant, led a 40-man patrol up Suribachi on Feb. 23, 1945. He is one of the seven men, five of whom show distinctly, in the historic photograph made by Joe Rosenthal, then an Associated Press photographer.

Of the seven men at the flag raising ceremony, four subsequently were killed in action in World War II.

Hunt for Cook Is On in New Mexico

Albuquerque, N. M., Jan. 10 (AP) —The hunt for Bill Cook, the elusive badman suspected of killing eight persons, centered in New Mexico today.

But officers conceded their efforts were no more productive than those in numerous other areas where the 24-year-old ex-convict reportedly has been sighted.

An intensive search in Albuquerque was touched off last night by a report that a man who entered a grocery store answered Cook's description, even down to tattoo marks on one hand.

All roads out of the city were quickly blocked. At one time, more than 100 city policemen, aided by FBI men, state and county officers, took part. But after a six-hour intensive hunt, no trace of Cook had been found.

Described as short and stocky, with the word "hard" tattooed on one hand, Cook has been variously reported also in California, Texas, Oregon, Oklahoma, Kansas and Mexico.

The hunt has been underway since the disappearance of the five members of the Carl Mosser family on a trip from their home in Atwood, Ill., to Albuquerque. Three other slayings are attributed to the desperado.

Another report on the phantom fugitive last night came from Sundown, Tex., about 45 miles west of Lubbock. A masked man, answering Cook's description, forced his way into a kitchen, grabbed some food and fled. Officers had no luck in finding the man.

Survey in Europe Pleases General

Brussels, Belgium, Jan. 10 (AP) —The first two stops on his 10-nation tour of western Europe have left Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower "reasonably well satisfied" with his survey of defense prospects.

This summary of his findings of his defense survey in France and Belgium was made by one of the general's associates as the Atlantic Pact commander moved into closing meetings of his stay in Belgium before moving to Holland.

He had at least one bright reason for being happy. In spite of the fulminations of the Communist press, A large crowd gathered in front of the Hotel Metropole last night and cheered him as he left for dinner with U. S. Ambassador Robert Murphy.

The showing was in contrast to the apathetic reaction of non-Communist Paris crowds to the five-star general's return to that city five years after his armies had liberated it from Hitler.

In the French capital the chief public response to Eisenhower was a demonstration yesterday against his visit by about 4,000 Communists. The Reds failed, however, in their advertised plans to tie up the city with a strike.

Narcotics Violations

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—The 2,298 narcotics arrests in New York state last year represented an increase of 62.4 per cent over the 1949 total. The 2,298 were among 26,357 arrests for major crimes during 1950, the State Correction Department reported yesterday. The over-all total was 1.3 per cent above 1949. However, the total for crimes other than those dealing with narcotics was 2.5 per cent under 1949.

Set Year to Study Civil Service System

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—The Mahoney Commission on Coordination of State Activities today set a one-year time limit on its "thorough study" of the State Civil Service Department's administrative system.

The commission chairman, Senator Walter J. Mahoney, said the staff would concentrate on "improvement in the existing administrative civil service and personnel management procedures."

"It is vital to the carrying on of state government that there be not only qualified employes but also that there be a satisfactory personnel system," the Buffalo Republican added.

Mahoney said the commission hoped to complete within one year its official look into the workings of the Civil Service Department.

J. Edward Conway, president of the State Civil Service Commission, pledged cooperation to the Mahoney Commission staff investigators.

The Civil Service Commission supervises the appointment and promotion of most of the state's 75,000 employes and administers its personnel management program.

Mahoney said his commission would confine its study to civil service and personnel administration in the state government. The study will not involve municipal civil service administration except for a survey of the state department's inspectional activities in the municipal field.

'FREEDOM' NOT ABSTRACT IDEAL

Lieutenant-General Matthew Ridgway, the new field commander of UN forces in Korea, told his men the other day to remember they are fighting for freedom, not just for muddy villages in a strange land.

The reminder is important. But there's another side to the story. Countless thousands of peaceful people had their homes in those muddy villages.

It's hard for us, 7,000 to 10,000 miles away, to realize the personal tragedy suffered today by millions of Koreans. As the tides of battle have shifted back and forth, their homes and their towns have been caught repeatedly in the line of fire.

A big share of these villages now has been hopelessly flattened. Even if the Communist scourge should be suddenly lifted from their country, these people would have nothing to return to but crumbled ruins. However the war comes out these unfortunate folk will lose.

Their tragic plight is dramatically emphasized in the great exodus that preceded Seoul's fall to the Reds for the second time. As civilians streamed across the Han River bridges in search of some haven in the south, Seoul's population plummeted from a normal 1,750,000 to only 500,000.

Other hundreds of thousands from many parts of Korea have fled southward, too. We even evacuated more than 100,000 North Koreans by sea from Hungnam when our forces pulled out.

The current Red Drive is producing many more refugees than did the first one last summer. The people have now experienced the contrast between democratic and Communist rule. More than that, in recent months they have cooperated with UN forces; they know death or other reprisals await them if they stay.

Only recently have we learned how shockingly the North Koreans treated their blood brothers as they fell back during the successful UN advance last fall. Our military leaders were puzzled to find so few natives equipped by talent and training for local civilian leadership.

The reason was simple: the Korean Reds had systematically murdered the best educated and most talented citizens in the villages they abandoned. Perhaps never before has a "scorched humans" policy been pursued so ruthlessly. Nothing any more pleasant awaits those who do not follow UN armies southward this time.

Thus Korea, which a year ago was still a peaceful land with some hope of gradual betterment for its people, is today a blackened shambles. Over its scarred, churned-up earth wander millions of human beings who do not know where their next home will be. They know only that they must flee the Red terror.

We are fighting for freedom, yes. But liberty is not a disembodied cause. It has intense meaning for those who are barely holding to it today, and may lose it tomorrow. So long as we are firing a shot on that grubby peninsula, we must fire it not alone in the name of freedom but for the hapless Koreans and their shattered, muddy villages.

Water shortages are not peculiar to New York City in the summer time. In Arabia, for example, a prince complains that every time his men drill for water they strike oil. But even that is better than nothing.

END OF CHINA TRADE

What little was left of trade relations between the United States and the mainland of China has been virtually obliterated since the clash of American and other United Nations troops with Chinese Communist troops in Korea. Embargoes by both our government and the Peiping regime are intended to throttle trade even through intermediaries, and the act of severance is completed by American seizure of Red Chinese assets in this country and Peiping seizure of American assets in Red China.

This final stroke really only gave legal form to already existing facts, as the clash of arms was little more than a battlefield explosion of tension long brewing. Nevertheless there is a tragic finality in these developments. It will be a long time before America and China can share friendship again.

Every family should eat out once in a while—and give friend husband a change from his dishwashing.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

A BILLION DOLLARS

A friend writes:

"The word 'billion' flows glibly from the pens of journalists and the tongues of radio commentators and the public accepts it without considering what a staggering sum it represents. Webster defines 'a billion' thus: A thousand million. In short, instead of saying Congress wants 70 billions in 1951, we would say, Congress wants 70 thousand millions of dollars. What would you think of this?"

The idea is a good one, but editors and others will complain that it uses up too much room. That is a matter of perspective. It used to be that if a man had $1,000,000, he figured he had about $60,000 a year and was a very rich man. I receive from my various labors more than that each year, but I am not a rich man.

In fact, when it comes to savings, I am a poor man because I can save practically nothing after I have paid federal and state taxes and the high cost of living.

Furthermore, I receive inflated dollars and pay inflated dollars and therefore those who pay me and those whom I pay are kidding each other because we believe that we are using dollars when actually we are using half-dollars or less, although the Treasury still calls them dollars. Labor kids itself by asking for more of the same, but always actually getting more tokens of less money.

Harry Truman talks about billions as though they were nickles and grew on trees. This romantic attitude would make no difference were it not that his policies are stripping this country of its natural resources and killing the initiative of our most able men, who measure the value of their earnings not by what they can spend but by what they can save.

His predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, knew what a million dollars meant, by birth, inheritance, environment and habit of mind. It seemed a paltry sum to him. True, we have become glib about it and scatter billions in our speech as he did in government expenditures. It is difficult to show the results of his efforts to get rid of these billions.

In fact, I have been trying to find out what happened to the $50,000,000,00 (pardon me, I mean $50 thousand million) which we have in more recent years spent on the national defense and for which there is nothing to show so far as any of us, dead or alive, can discover.

We shall soon enough be in the trillion and zillion dollar class and that will be too difficult to discuss or write about.

Why not be realistic? Why not devalue our currency to what it really is? That would abolish the dollar and make our standard of currency about 41 cents. We might call the new money a Hopkins in honor of that notable spendthrift. Instead of the $ sign, we could use an H. The British might do the same with the pound, naming it after John Maynard Keynes.

It would be realistic, which I understand is a virtue because Stalin is supposed to be realistic. Anything Stalin does is supposed to be perfect, including the general use of the lie.

Now, to be even more realistic, we might as well stop buying anything in the grocery store but demand the free use of the enormous stores of food held by the government, and much of it rotting. In that way, we should not need money at all, but would get a card from a revivified OPA.

Then my friend's idea could be carried even further. We should not only drop the word, million, but arithmetic altogether. In fact, we lost all sense of arithmetic long ago, because after we add a column of earnings, we must deduct those earnings which we are only permitted to handle but not to use or to keep. Then it comes out minus, which is supposed to be plus.

If you understend how it works, you should get the Nobel Prize for fallacies and they might even make you secretary of the Treasury, which is what they did to Henry Morgenthau.

By the way, what became of Henry the Morgue? I have not heard his name mentioned for a long time. It is his chief assistant, Harry Dexter White, whom we read about. White's fame is eternal, having been preserved in one of Whittaker Chambers's pumpkins.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LONG TRIP OF FOOD THROUGH BODY

Indigestion is one of man's commonest foes, yet when we think of the tube that carries our food from the mouth to its exit from the body, and trace its winding course uphill, downhill, around single curves, and then around double S curves, the wonder is that we do not suffer even more digestive troubles.

The tube is not unlike an elastic tube in that it can be stretched at certain points. The fact that there is so much elasticity in the walls of this tube means that it can remain "on the stretch" for long periods. It loses however, some of its stretch or squeezing ability if kept that way too long. It then loses its tone, and lack of tone in stomach and intestinal walls may mean failure to push food and wastes onward and downward.

The stomach can is distended by too much food, too much water, or because it hangs too low at times. This makes a hard climb for the food up to, instead of down to, the opening into small intestine. The small intestine which is 20 feet long and piled up in folds in the abdomen, empties into the large intestine by means of a valve which prevents the digested food from flowing back. All the nourishment of this digested food is absorbed into the blood and lymphatic vessels, leaving only the wastes to travel the six more feet of the large intestine and thence out of the body.

There is often a delay just beyond the valve in the large intestine and the waste matter pouches or dilates the large intestine in region of appendix at lower right side of abdomen. After climbing about ten or 12 inches up right side, the large intestine with its wastes makes a sudden turn across abdomen from right side to left, about two or three inches below stomach. Sometimes it doesn't go straight across as it may form a loop downward for inches, and sometimes a foot or more, which, of course, means a delay in progress of wastes to the left side. This condition may be mistaken for appendicitis.

When the large intestine reaches the left side, it again has to make a sudden curve downwards (another delay at this curve); it then goes all the way down the left side till near its lower end when there is another double S curve, causing a slowing up or delay of wastes before they are pushed out of the body by the walls of the large intestine assisted by muscles of the abdomen.

Even with all these points where delay may occur, exercising the body and eating fruits and rough vegetables should prevent delays and thus prevent constipation.

Constipation

It has been estimated that there are more persons with constipation than there are without it. For information on this subject write today for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "Constipation." It's Costing Him, Too!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Only a handful know it, but the raging arguments between President Truman and Sen. Robert A. Taft could have been avoided.

A few weeks after his big election victory in Ohio in November, Taft sent word to the White House he would be glad to sit down with Mr. Truman and talk over the problems of defense with the view to reaching a closer cooperation between the administration and the GOP leadership.

Senator Taft's position, as expressed by such nonpolitical members of the administration team as Undersecretary of Defense Robert Lovett, was that he had not made up his mind on foreign policy and wanted to hear all sides. In fact, friends of Taft said that he was so anxious to attain the stature of invalid Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, that he was willing to drop isolationism if he could be shown it was against our best interests.

This was reported to President Truman by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also by Secretary of Defense George Marshall. They urgently felt the Senator should be invited to the White House.

The White House staff, however, argued against it. Sensing some political trick, most of the presidential advisers felt that Truman should not open his doors to Taft unless the senator agreed, in advance, to support a bipartisan foreign policy.

President Truman, who has always had a sneaking admiration for Taft, listened to the arguments. At one moment he was inclined to throw protocol to the wind, call Taft to his office, take down his hair and say, "Bob, we're in a jam in the world. We need your help!" But he was talked out of it.

Finally, after some three weeks of bickering within the White House circle, a compromise was reached. Taft would be invited in, but only as one of a group of congressional leaders summoned to the White House for a formal conference.

Net result was that the rebuffed Taft angrily told the Republican conference he was opposed even to "consulting" with the administration. And, in his foreign policy speech last week, he accused the President of violating the Constitution by sending troops to Korea.

King of the Justice Department

Nevada's barrel-chested, silver-maned Sen. Pat McCarran is the worst tyrant in the Senate, and he doesn't car who knows it.

Even in the presence of a dumfounded visitor, McCarran telephoned Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford and gave him a humiliating tongue-lashing.

"Hello, Ford. What about that young fellow I referred to you for a job?" demanded the Nevadan.

Ford mumbled an explanation about the tight Justice Department budget.

"That's no excuse," snorted McCarran who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has almost life-and-death power over the Justice Department. "If you haven't got any money left to put him on, you certainly know where to come for a deficiency appropriation. Who controls your budget?"

Both McCarran and Ford knew the answer to that question. For McCarran is also chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee that holds the Justice Department's purse strings.

Meekly, Ford promised an opening for McCarran's friend in another two months.

"Two months from now is too late," snapped McCarran, his silver hair bristling. Then he bluntly ordered: "Ford, put him on the first of the month."

Timidly, Ford agreed.

Timidly, Ford agreed.

"That's better, Peyton," chortled McCarran. "Now let's make that a deal. Say 'Cross my heart.'"

"All right . . . cross my heart," obediently recited the No. 2 man in the Justice Department.

Ike's Advice

Just before he left for Europe last week, General Eisenhower vigorously rebuked the pessimisitic forecasts that the western world would fall to communism.

Sitting in the Washington apartment of his good friend, humorist George E. Allen, Ike listened to predictions that the British Empire was falling apart, that the French would not flight, that the U. S. A. was hopelessly divided and without leadership, and that Russia would seize Europe before he could organize its defenses.

Finally Eisenhower rose and punched out these words: "Anyone who has ever lived with our boys in action knows that we are still the most dynamic nation in the world. But we've lost faith in ourselves. What we need is to prove to ourselves and the world what we can do. That way we will strengthen our allies and make aggression by the enemy impossible. I know we can do it."

This caused George Allen to reminisce: "Do you remember how pessimistic I was when you first went to England to start a second front? I told you Hitler was going to bottle up the Mediterranean, knock Russia out of the war and invade Ireland.

"Well, you gave us this same advice then," concluded Allen, "and you were absolutely right. I'll string along with you now, too."

'Where Do We Get the Money?'

Tall, whip-tongued GOP Congressman Bob "where are you going to get the money?" Rich retired from Congress the other day after 20 years of almost uninterrupted sermonizing on government economy. Even Fair Deal foes joined in the applause as the colorful Pennsylvanian bowed out with this valedictory poem on his favorite theme:

"A New Year's resolution that would do the country the greatest good
"Would be to economize in government spending, as you should.
"Colleagues, as the New Year begins for 1951
"The best resolution I could offer, by gum,
"Is that Congress would be wise to economize.
"Now I wish you joy, pleasure, health, happiness and sich,
"And on this floor now is the last of Bob Rich."

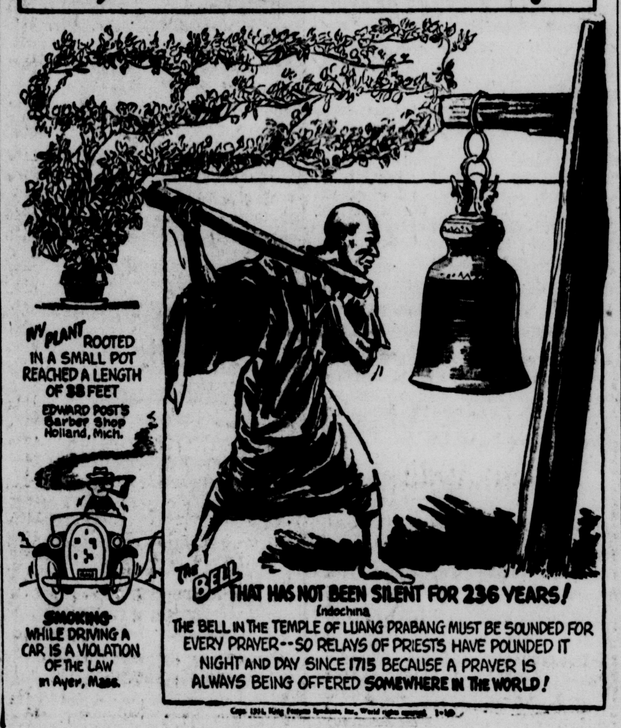

Tight Squeeze

War Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson is caught in a squeeze between his new duties as mobilization boss and his old ties with General Electric. He may be forced to crack down on the electric companies in New England, because aluminum and steel plants have been driven out of New England by the high power rates.

Also, the Aluminum Company of Canada is urging Wilson to decide in favor of expanding Canadian aluminum production, at the expense of American expansion—largely because public power projects must be built to supply extra power if more aluminum plants are built in the United States. It is no secret that the electrical industry is against public power projects.

Fear of Russia Chief Factor in Not Declaring Red China Aggressors in Korea

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 10—Until now it has been assumed that America needed mostly to reach behind the "Iron Curtain" to get her views across to the people there, but it is beginning to become apparent that what is equally necessary is some way to place the viewpoint of the United States before countries outside the "Iron Curtain."

There seems no explanation of the hesitancy and reluctance of other governments in the United Nations to vote to declare Red China an aggressor except that the public opinion of other countries is not as well informed about the American viewpoint as it should be.

Thus, there is in America wonderment that the United Nations should hesitate to adopt a resolution branding Red China as an aggressor. To the average American it is inexplicable that, after what has happened in Korea, any free government should be reluctant to call a spade a spade. But the reason given for refraining from taking such a step is said to be a fear of offending Russia.

Almost every proposal to carry out the basic principles of the United Nations Charter itself by resisting aggression is waived aside timidly in certain countries as likely to bring on a war. There seems to be prevalent abroad a genuine fear of Russia—a kind of defeatism. This emerges in the repeated requests for a "cease fire" plan based on "peace at any price" proposals.

There is, of course, a way to avoid a war with Russia at least temporarily and that is by appeasement. But the American view is that in 1938 appeasement at Munich was construed as a weakness which emboldened rather than restrained Hitler. It could now embolden Stalin.

The United States, through its diplomatic representatives abroad, is trying to reflect American opinion on the Chinese aggression in Korea. But it is evident from press dispatches that other governments are looking at things from somewhat the same timid viewpoint that helped to kill the League of Nations as a force for peace. The timidity which failed to challenge Hitler's march into the Rhineland in November 1936 is being paralleled today. At that time the British and French Foreign Offices pursued a course that is strangely like that which is being reported from London today. All sorts of excuses for inaction were given then, and Hitler, seeing his advantage, took thereafter whatever territory he wanted—and picked off country by country because he was sure the free nations were not united. War came anyway, despite the appeasement.

The sending of American troops to defend Europe would not be debated in this country today if there were unity among the governments of the free world. If there were genuine devotion to basic principles, if material considerations were less influential, and if nations stood squarely on moral principles and condemned wrongdoing unhesitatingly and showed that they were not afraid of war even if war had to come, proposals to limit our aid to Europe or to refrain from sending a land army abroad would not be winning any substantial support in America today.

Again and again since 1945 it has been said that the Moscow government would be impressed only by military force or by "areas of strength," but anyone who knows the elementary principles of warfare knows that an army without a spirit can be beaten by an inferior force. It is the lack of a united determination—the absence of a spirit of resoluteness—which burdens the United Nations itself with a weakness that can never be compensated for by the size of our military armament.

The first essential to a spirit of resoluteness is an honest self-examination. The United Nations cannot afford to be insincere or intimidated by an aggressor. Either the U.N. meant what it said on June 26 in condemning aggression and ordering it resisted or else it was just using empty phrases. The theory that the free world does not dare to speak out for the rightness of its cause for fear it may have to fight to defend that cause does not appeal to a resolute nation. It doesn't generate a determination to make sacrifices for a basic principle of national and international conduct.

Irresoluteness does, however, accelerate the deterioration of a nation or group of nations. The United Nations is very much on trial at the moment. It is most unfortunate that, in the various capitals of the world where vital decisions must be made by governments, there is not an awareness of the crisis that faces the U.N. itself and perhaps the future of all alliances that normally would be expected to protect nations, large and small, against aggression.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Jan. 9—The Communists have not exhausted the libel suit as a weapon of blackmail and suppression but, as the treason becomes more flagrant to the people who serve on juries, the jeopardy of the patriot who speaks out is diminishing. However, efforts have been made to throttle the press by other means in such cases.

In Washington, recently, Senator Paul Douglas, of Illinois, a Democrat, of course, inveighed against severe treatment of small abuses in public conduct. It would be easy to agree with Senator Douglas if he would admit that the smear has been a specialty of a whole corps of professional blackguards in the service of his own party.

A senator of real stature would not have hesitated to name the notorious rascals who rushed out of cabinet meetings to blab malicious distortions to the gangsters of underworld journalism, for their evil conduct was a matter of common knowledge long ago. Unquestionably this infidelity has been responsible for the debasement of professional standards, with editors sharing the guilt, of course.

A senator of real stature, who ventured to address the subject at all, would not flinch from exposing the conspiracy which poured forth on the radio and in print such a vile torrent of lies about the late Jim Forrestal, in the interests of an unseen foe, that he was driven out of a window to his death.

But we see here a want of the same force and courage that Senator Joe McCarthy, a Republican, has shown in unmasking Drew Pearson.

Douglas sees an evil, he complains of it, but he pulls back from the fight which McCarthy boldly began, knowing that he would be smeared by every knave in the Congress and in the corps of correspondents.

Senator Douglas thought President Truman's letter to a journalist who withheld from his daughter praise which she did not deserve, was a gross exaggeration of a trivial indiscretion. He should have let that one rest. In that letter the President revealed aggressive criminal instincts, for he would have maimed the man by a felonious attack upon his person. That would have been the crime of mayhem. Has any other President of the United States expressed such brutality and moral ignorance? And was it not important that the people be informed of his character and of the criminal implications?

In New York of recent times the same tendency has been expressed in the courts in Communist cases. In the first trial of her friend, Alger Hiss, charged by constructive implication with treason against the United States, Eleanor Roosevelt flagrantly interfered to say:

"Day by day, as the defense attorney in the trial of Alger Hiss brings out facts about Whittaker Chambers as a witness, one cannot help being mystified as to why the gentleman should be believed at all. He has now admitted that he perjured himself before the grand jury and before the House Committee on Un-American Activities . . . He seems to have no hesitancy about telling unsavory facts about his private life which make him

A big share of these villages now has been hopelessly flattened. Even if the Communist scourge should be suddenly lifted from their country, these people would have nothing to return to but crumbled ruins. However the war comes out these unfortunate folk will lose.

Their tragic plight is dramatically emphasized in the great exodus that preceded Seoul's fall to the Reds for the second time. As civilians streamed across the Han River bridges in search of some haven in the south, Seoul's population plummeted from a normal 1,750,000 to only 500,000.

Other hundreds of thousands from many parts of Korea have fled southward, too. We even evacuated more than 100,000 North Koreans by sea from Hungnam when our forces pulled out.

The current Red Drive is producing many more refugees than did the first one last summer. The people have now experienced the contrast between democratic and Communist rule. More than that, in recent months they have cooperated with UN forces; they know death or other reprisals await them if they stay.

Only recently have we learned how shockingly the North Koreans treated their blood brothers as they fell back during the successful UN advance last fall. Our military leaders were puzzled to find so few natives equipped by talent and training for local civilian leadership.

The reason was simple: the Korean Reds had systematically murdered the best educated and most talented citizens in the villages they abandoned. Perhaps never before has a "scorched humans" policy been pursued so ruthlessly. Nothing any more pleasant awaits those who do not follow UN armies southward this time.

Thus Korea, which a year ago was still a peaceful land with some hope of gradual betterment for its people, is today a blackened shambles. Over its scarred, churned-up earth wander millions of human beings who do not know where their next home will be. They know only that they must flee the Red terror.

We are fighting for freedom, yes. But liberty is not a disembodied cause. It has intense meaning for those who are barely holding to it today, and may lose it tomorrow. So long as we are firing a shot on that grubby peninsula, we must fire it not alone in the name of freedom but for the hapless Koreans and their shattered, muddy villages.

Water shortages are not peculiar to New York City in the summer time. In Arabia, for example, a prince complains that every time his men drill for water they strike oil. But even that is better than nothing.

END OF CHINA TRADE

What little was left of trade relations between the United States and the mainland of China has been virtually obliterated since the clash of American and other United Nations troops with Chinese Communist troops in Korea. Embargoes by both our government and the Peiping regime are intended to throttle trade even through intermediaries, and the act of severance is completed by American seizure of Red Chinese assets in this country and Peiping seizure of American assets in Red China.

This final stroke really only gave legal form to already existing facts, as the clash of arms was little more than a battlefield explosion of tension long brewing. Nevertheless there is a tragic finality in these developments. It will be a long time before America and China can share friendship again.

Every family should eat out once in a while—and give friend husband a change from his dishwashing.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

A BILLION DOLLARS

A friend writes:

"The word 'billion' flows glibly from the pens of journalists and the tongues of radio commentators and the public accepts it without considering what a staggering sum it represents. Webster defines 'a billion' thus: A thousand million. In short, instead of saying Congress wants 70 billions in 1951, we would say, Congress wants 70 thousand millions of dollars. What would you think of this?"

The idea is a good one, but editors and others will complain that it uses up too much room. That is a matter of perspective. It used to be that if a man had $1,000,000, he figured he had about $60,000 a year and was a very rich man. I receive from my various labors more than that each year, but I am not a rich man.

In fact, when it comes to savings, I am a poor man because I can save practically nothing after I have paid federal and state taxes and the high cost of living.

Furthermore, I receive inflated dollars and pay inflated dollars and therefore those who pay me and those whom I pay are kidding each other because we believe that we are using dollars when actually we are using half-dollars or less, although the Treasury still calls them dollars. Labor kids itself by asking for more of the same, but always actually getting more tokens of less money.

Harry Truman talks about billions as though they were nickles and grew on trees. This romantic attitude would make no difference were it not that his policies are stripping this country of its natural resources and killing the initiative of our most able men, who measure the value of their earnings not by what they can spend but by what they can save.

His predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, knew what a million dollars meant, by birth, inheritance, environment and habit of mind. It seemed a paltry sum to him. True, we have become glib about it and scatter billions in our speech as he did in government expenditures. It is difficult to show the results of his efforts to get rid of these billions.

In fact, I have been trying to find out what happened to the $50,000,000.00 (pardon me, I mean $50 thousand million) which we have in more recent years spent on the national defense and for which there is nothing to show so far as any of us, dead or alive, can discover.

We shall soon enough be in the trillion and zillion dollar class and that will be too difficult to discuss or write about.

Why not be realistic? Why not devalue our currency to what it really is? That would abolish the dollar and make our standard of currency about 41 cents. We might call the new money a Hopkins in honor of that notable spendthrift. Instead of the $ sign, we could use an H. The British might do the same with the pound, naming it after John Maynard Keynes.

It would be realistic, which I understand is a virtue because Stalin is supposed to be realistic. Anything Stalin does is supposed to be perfect, including the general use of the lie.

Now, to be even more realistic, we might as well stop buying anything in the grocery store but demand the free use of the enormous stores of food held by the government, and much of it rotting. In that way, we should not need money at all, but would get a card from a revivified OPA.

Then my friend's idea could be carried even further. We should not only drop the word, million, but arithmetic altogether. In fact, we lost all sense of arithmetic long ago, because after we add a column of earnings, we must deduct those earnings which we are only permitted to handle but not to use or to keep. Then it comes out minus, which is supposed to be plus.

If you understand how it works, you should get the Nobel Prize for fallacies and they might even make you secretary of the Treasury, which is what they did to Henry Morgenthau.

By the way, what became of Henry the Morgue? I have not heard his name mentioned for a long time. It is his chief assistant, Harry Dexter White, whom we read about. White's fame is eternal, having been preserved in one of Whittaker Chambers's pumpkins.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LONG TRIP OF FOOD THROUGH BODY

Indigestion is one of man's commonest foes, yet when we think of the tube that carries our food from the mouth to its exit from the body, and trace its winding course uphill, downhill, around single curves, and then around double S curves, the wonder is that we do not suffer even more digestive troubles.

The tube is not unlike an elastic tube in that it can be stretched at certain points. The fact that there is so much elasticity in the walls of this tube means that it can remain "on the stretch" for long periods. It loses however, some of its stretch or squeezing ability if kept that way too long. It then loses its tone, and lack of tone in stomach and intestinal walls may mean failure to push food and wastes onward and downward.

The stomach can is distended by too much food, too much water, or because it hangs too low at times. This makes a hard climb for the food up to, instead of down to, the opening into small intestine. The small intestine which is 20 feet long and piled up in folds in the abdomen, empties into the large intestine by means of a valve which prevents the digested food from flowing back. All the nourishment of this digested food is absorbed into the blood and lymphatic vessels, leaving only the wastes to travel the six more feet of the large intestine and thence out of the body.

There is often a delay just beyond the valve in the large intestine and the waste matter pouches or dilates the large intestine in region of appendix at lower right side of abdomen. After climbing about ten or 12 inches up right side, the large intestine with its wastes makes a sudden turn across abdomen from right side to left, about two or three inches below stomach. Sometimes it doesn't go straight across as it may form a loop downward for inches, and sometimes a foot or more, which, of course, means a delay in progress of wastes to the left side. This condition may be mistaken for appendicitis.

When the large intestine reaches the left side, it again has to make a sudden curve downwards (another delay at this curve); it then goes all the way down the left side till near its lower end when there is another double S curve, causing a slowing up or delay of wastes before they are pushed out of the body by the walls of the large intestine assisted by muscles of the abdomen.

Even with all these points where delay may occur, exercising the body and eating fruits and rough vegetables should prevent delays and thus prevent constipation.

Constipation

It has been estimated that there are more persons with constipation than there are without it. For information on this subject write today for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "Constipation." It's Costing Him, Too!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — Only a handful know it, but the raging arguments between President Truman and Sen. Robert A. Taft could have been avoided.

A few weeks after his big election victory in Ohio in November, Taft sent word to the White House he would be glad to sit down with Mr. Truman and talk over the problems of defense with the view to reaching a closer cooperation between the administration and the GOP leadership.

Senator Taft's position, as expressed by such nonpolitical members of the administration team as Undersecretary of Defense Robert Lovett, was that he had not made up his mind on foreign policy and wanted to hear all sides. In fact, friends of Taft said that he was so anxious to attain the stature of invalid Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, that he was willing to drop isolationism if he could be shown it was against our best interests.

This was reported to President Truman by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also by Secretary of Defense George Marshall. They urgently felt the Senator should be invited to the White House.

The White House staff, however, argued against it. Sensing some political trick, most of the presidential advisers felt that Truman should not open his doors to Taft unless the senator agreed, in advance, to support a bipartisan foreign policy.

President Truman, who has always had a sneaking admiration for Taft, listened to the arguments. At one moment he was inclined to throw protocol to the wind, call Taft to his office, take down his hair and say, "Bob, we're in a jam in the world. We need your help!" But he was talked out of it.

Finally, after some three weeks of bickering within the White House circle, a compromise was reached. Taft would be invited in, but only as one of a group of congressional leaders summoned to the White House for a formal conference.

Net result was that the rebuffed Taft angrily told the Republican conference he was opposed even to "consulting" with the administration. And, in his foreign policy speech last week, he accused the President of violating the Constitution by sending troops to Korea.

King of the Justice Department

Nevada's barrel-chested, silver-maned Sen. Pat McCarran is the worst tyrant in the Senate, and he doesn't car who knows it.

Even in the presence of a dumfounded visitor, McCarran telephoned Deputy Attorney General Peyton Ford and gave him a humiliating tongue-lashing.

"Hello, Ford. What about that young fellow I referred to you for a job?" demanded the Nevadan.

Ford mumbled an explanation about the tight Justice Department budget.

"That's no excuse," snorted McCarran who, as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, has almost life-and-death power over the Justice Department. "If you haven't got any money left to put him on, you certainly know where to come for a deficiency appropriation. Who controls your budget?"

Both McCarran and Ford knew the answer to that question. For McCarran is also chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee that holds the Justice Department's purse strings.

Meekly, Ford promised an opening for McCarran's friend in another two months.

"Two months from now is too late," snapped McCarran, his silver hair bristling. Then he bluntly ordered: "Ford, put him on the first of the month."

Timidly, Ford agreed.

Timidly, Ford agreed.

"That's better, Peyton," chortled McCarran. "Now let's make that a deal. Say 'Cross my heart.'"

"All right . . . cross my heart," obediently recited the No. 2 man in the Justice Department.

Ike's Advice

Just before he left for Europe last week, General Eisenhower vigorously rebuked the pessimisitic forecasts that the western world would fall to communism.

Sitting in the Washington apartment of his good friend, humorist George E. Allen, Ike listened to predictions that the British Empire was falling apart, that the French would not flight, that the U. S. A. was hopelessly divided and without leadership, and that Russia would seize Europe before he could organize its defenses.

Finally Eisenhower rose and punched out these words: "Anyone who has ever lived with our boys in action knows that we are still the most dynamic nation in the world. But we've lost faith in ourselves. What we need is to prove to ourselves and the world what we can do. That way we will strengthen our allies and make aggression by the enemy impossible. I know we can do it."

This caused George Allen to reminisce: "Do you remember how pessimistic I was when you first went to England to start a second front? I told you Hitler was going to bottle up the Mediterranean, knock Russia out of the war and invade Ireland.

"Well, you gave us this same advice then," concluded Allen, "and you were absolutely right. I'll string along with you now, too."

'Where Do We Get the Money?'

Tall, whip-tongued GOP Congressman Bob "where are you going to get the money?" Rich retired from Congress the other day after 20 years of almost uninterrupted sermonizing on government economy. Even Fair Deal foes joined in the applause as the colorful Pennsylvanian bowed out with this valedictory poem on his favorite theme:

"A New Year's resolution that would do the country the greatest good
"Would be to economize in government spending, as you should.
"Colleagues, as the New Year begins for 1951
"The best resolution I could offer, by gum,
"Is that Congress would be wise to economize.
"Now I wish you joy, pleasure, health, happiness and sich,
"And on this floor now is the last of Bob Rich."

Tight Squeeze

War Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson is caught in a squeeze between his new duties as mobilization boss and his old ties with General Electric. He may be forced to crack down on the electric companies in New England, because aluminum and steel plants have been driven out of New England by the high power rates.

Also, the Aluminum Company of Canada is urging Wilson to decide in favor of expanding Canadian aluminum production, at the expense of American expansion—largely because public power projects must be built to supply extra power if more aluminum plants are built in the United States. It is no secret that the electrical industry is against public power projects.

Fear of Russia Chief Factor in Not Declaring Red China Aggressors in Korea

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 10—Until now it has been assumed that America needed mostly to reach behind the "Iron Curtain" to get her views across to the people there, but it is beginning to become apparent that what is equally necessary is some way to place the viewpoint of the United States before countries outside the "Iron Curtain."

There seems no explanation of the hesitancy and reluctance of other governments in the United Nations to vote to declare Red China an aggressor except that the public opinion of other countries is not as well informed about the American viewpoint as it should be.

Thus, there is in America wonderment that the United Nations should hesitate to adopt a resolution branding Red China as an aggressor. To the average American it is inexplicable that, after what has happened in Korea, any free government should be reluctant to call a spade a spade. But the reason given for refraining from taking such a step is said to be a fear of offending Russia.

Almost every proposal to carry out the basic principles of the United Nations Charter itself by resisting aggression is waived aside timidly in certain countries as likely to bring on a war. There seems to be prevalent abroad a genuine fear of Russia—a kind of defeatism. This emerges in the repeated requests for a "cease fire" plan based on "peace at any price" proposals.

There is, of course, a way to avoid a war with Russia at least temporarily and that is by appeasement. But the American view is that in 1938 appeasement at Munich was construed as a weakness which emboldened rather than restrained Hitler. It could now embolden Stalin.

The United States, through its diplomatic representatives abroad, is trying to reflect American opinion on the Chinese aggression in Korea. But it is evident from press dispatches that other governments are looking at things from somewhat the same timid viewpoint that helped to kill the League of Nations as a force for peace. The timidity which failed to challenge Hitler's march into the Rhineland in November 1936 is being paralleled today. At that time the British and French Foreign Offices pursued a course that is strangely like that which is being reported from London today. All sorts of excuses for inaction were given then, and Hitler, seeing his advantage, took thereafter whatever territory he wanted—and picked off country by country because he was sure the free nations were not united. War came anyway, despite the appeasement.

The sending of American troops to defend Europe would not be debated in this country today if there were unity among the governments of the free world. If there were genuine devotion to basic principles, if material considerations were less influential, and if nations stood squarely on moral principles and condemned wrongdoing unhesitatingly and showed that they were not afraid of war even if war had to come, proposals to limit our aid to Europe or to refrain from sending a land army abroad would not be winning any substantial support in America today.

Again and again since 1945 it has been said that the Moscow government would be impressed only by military force or by "areas of strength," but anyone who knows the elementary principles of warfare knows that an army without a spirit can be beaten by an inferior force. It is the lack of a united determination—the absence of a spirit of resoluteness—which burdens the United Nations itself with a weakness that can never be compensated for by the size of our military armament.

The first essential to a spirit of resoluteness is an honest self-examination. The United Nations cannot afford to be insincere or intimidated by an aggressor. Either the U.N. meant what it said on June 26 in condemning aggression and ordering it resisted or else it was just using empty phrases. The theory that the free world does not dare to speak out for the rightness of its cause for fear it may have to fight to defend that cause does not appeal to a resolute nation. It doesn't generate a determination to make sacrifices for a basic principle of national and international conduct.

Irresoluteness does, however, accelerate the deterioration of a nation or group of nations. The United Nations is very much on trial at the moment. It is most unfortunate that, in the various capitals of the world where vital decisions must be made by governments, there is not an awareness of the crisis that faces the U.N. itself and perhaps the future of all alliances that normally would be expected to protect nations, large and small, against aggression.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Jan. 9—The Communists have not exhausted the libel suit as a weapon of blackmail and suppression but, as the treason becomes more flagrant to the people who serve on juries, the jeopardy of the patriot who speaks out is diminishing. However, efforts have been made to throttle the press by other means in such cases.

In Washington, recently, Senator Paul Douglas, of Illinois, a Democrat, of course, inveighed against severe treatment of small abuses in public conduct. It would be easy to agree with Senator Douglas if he would admit that the smear has been a specialty of a whole corps of professional blackguards in the service of his own party.

A senator of real stature would not have hesitated to name the notorious rascals who rushed out of cabinet meetings to blab malicious distortions to the gangsters of underworld journalism, for their evil conduct was a matter of common knowledge long ago. Unquestionably this infidelity has been responsible for the debasement of professional standards, with editors sharing the guilt, of course.

A senator of real stature, who ventured to address the subject at all, would not flinch from exposing the conspiracy which poured forth on the radio and in print such a vile torrent of lies about the late Jim Forrestal, in the interests of an unseen foe, that he was driven out of a window to his death.

But we see here a want of the same force and courage that Senator Joe McCarthy, a Republican, has shown in unmasking Drew Pearson.

Douglas sees an evil, he complains of it, but he pulls back from the fight which McCarthy boldly began, knowing that he would be smeared by every knave in the Congress and in the corps of correspondents.

Senator Douglas thought President Truman's letter to a journalist who withheld from his daughter praise which she did not deserve, was a gross exaggeration of a trivial indiscretion. He should have let that one rest. In that letter the President revealed aggressive criminal instincts, for he would have maimed the man by a felonious attack upon his person. That would have been the crime of mayhem. Has any other President of the United States expressed such brutality and moral ignorance? And was it not important that the people be informed of his character and of the criminal implications?

In New York of recent times the same tendency has been expressed in the courts in Communist cases. In the first trial of her friend, Alger Hiss, charged by constructive implication with treason against the United States, Eleanor Roosevelt flagrantly interfered to say:

"Day by day, as the defense attorney in the trial of Alger Hiss brings out facts about Whittaker Chambers as a witness, one cannot help being mystified as to why the gentleman should be believed at all. He has now admitted that he perjured himself before the grand jury and before the House Committee on Un-American Activities . . . He seems to have no hesitancy about telling unsavory facts about his private life which make him

Roal Alms

For almost 300 years, silver pennies have been coined in Britain for use only as royal alms on Maundy Thursday, the Thursday before Easter, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Sinclair Lewis, 66,

had been a patient with bronchial pneumonia since Dec. 31. Hospital attendants said he suffered also from an inflammation of the heart.

Creator of George Babbitt, the typical American businessman of the 1920's, Lewis made literary history also with such searching studies of American life as "Main Street," "Arrowsmith," "Elmer Gantry," "Dodsworth," "It Can't Happen Here" and "Kingsblood Royal."

Nobel Winner in 1930

He was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1930, chiefly for Babbitt. Four years before he had refused a Pulitzer Prize because he disagreed with the terms of Joseph Pulitzer's will setting up the prize.

His 21st book, "The God-Seeker," was published in 1949.

Born in Sauk Center, Minn., on Feb. 7, 1885, Lewis after student days at Yale and a minor career on newspapers and magazines, became one of the great social historians among American novelists. His books blasted the foibles of "typically American" people and communities of the 1920's and 1930's with biting satire and down-to-earth realism.

Put Main Street on Map

Amid ever-stormy controversy, he put Main Street on the map and Babbitt into the language.

"Elmer Gantry," story of an evangelist with unministerial appetites, aroused a religious storm. Business men railed at "Babbitt" and "Dodsworth."

Lewis was married twice. Both his first wife, Grace Livingstone Hegger, and Miss Thompson divorced him.

Wells Lewis, son by his first marriage and an army lieutenant in World War 2, was killed in action in France. Michael Lewis, his son by Miss Thompson, reportedly returned to the United States last week to visit his mother. He had been studying dramatics in London. The novelist's brother, Claude Lewis, lives in St. Cloud, Minn.

Appeared in Woodstock

Lewis appeared with the cast of "Shadow and Substance," written by Paul Vincent Carroll, August 15, 1940, at the Woodstock Playhouse in the role of the Very Rev. Thomas Canon Skerritt, a dominating cleric.

Retired Actress Dies

Nine States Due To Lose Seats in House, Seven Gain

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Congress appeared unwilling today to take any action to prevent nine states from losing seats in the House or to correct apportionment discrepancies pointed out by President Truman.

Late this month the clerk of the House will notify the governors of nine states that they will have fewer representatives in the Congress meeting in 1953 and seven others that they will have more House seats than at present.

The losing states were certified by the President yesterday in a special message transmitting an official report on the 1950 census. They are Arkansas, Idaho, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Tennessee, 1 each; Missouri, New York, and Oklahoma, 2 each; and Pennsylvania, 3.

Losses are due to population shifts or declines or increases of less than the national average. The 14 lost seats will be picked up by Texas, Virginia, Washington, Michigan and Maryland, 1 each; Florida, 2, and California, 7.

Up to States

It's up to the affected states to decide whether and how to realign their congressional districts because of changes in representation. If the states don't act, members from new districts must run for election from the state-at-large in 1952; in states losing districts, all members must run at-large if the state legislatures fail to redistrict.

The only thing Congress can do to keep any state from losing seats in the House is to increase the House membership, now fixed by law at 435.

The average representation, based on the 1940 census, was 300,000 people. It will be close to 350,000 under the 1950 census.

The President pointed out that about 50 congressional districts have less than 250,000 population, while 50 others have more than 450,000.

Due to Population Changes

"It seems to me desirable," he said, "that the Congress at this time should give its attention to this important problem and enact legislation * * * which would provide the states with standards for establishing congressional districts and indicate the congressional interest in compliance with such standards."

Many of the existing discrepancies have resulted from population changes, but others have grown out of the practice known as "gerrymandering" congressional districts.

For political purposes and to protect the controlling party, some state legislatures have changed the geographical shape of districts. This is done to get a segment of politically unfriendly voters out of a doubtful district and "buried" in a safe one. Or, friendly voters in a safe district are included in a doubtful one, thereby converting it into safe territory for the controlling party.

Two Women Hurt In Local Accident

Two women were injured in a traffic mishap at Ten Broeck avenue and Elmendorf street at 10:20 a. m., today.

Mrs. Nora Short, 67, of Port Ewen suffered injuries of the face and leg and shock, and Eunice Short Scully, 37, of Port Ewen, suffered an injury of the right shoulder. Both were treated at Kingston Hospital.

The sedan, operated by Mrs. Scully, was headed north on Ten Broeck avenue and a panel truck, owned by F. B. Matthews & Co., and operated by Henry Coppo, 12 South Pine street, was headed east on Elmendorf street when they were in collision, police said. Mrs. Short was riding in the Scully car, which was damaged in the front and was towed from the scene.

Allies Fight

cessantly. Enemy mortar fire found the road.

"Allied soldiers with rifles lay on their stomachs in the snow."

The French-American force obviously was fighting to throw off balance the Communist drive down central Korea's mountain roads. The Red thrust threatened the Taejon-Taegu escape corridor for Eighth Army forces withdrawing in the west toward the old allied Pusan beachhead.

No Southeast Contact

While the Wonju battle raged, A.P. Correspondent John Randolph reported there was no contact southeast of Osan where Eighth Army forces were withdrawing.

Eighth Army officers said mud and snow may have slowed the Red advance but there was no lessening in the Communist buildup.

A.P. Correspondent Don Huth said Eighth Army reports indicated Communist tanks had moved into the Chechon area 30 miles southeast of Wonju.

Communist prisoners said they had heard tanks moving there two night ago. They said also that they had seen 1,000 to 3,000 Red troops six miles east of Chechon.

U.N. patrols likewise reported hearing tanks rumbling during their scouting of the area north of Chechon Tuesday night.

Area of Buildup

Eighth Army reports indicated one area of Red buildup was north of Yoju. Sizable numbers of Communist cavalry were sighted in this area. However, U. N. patrols entered both Yoju, 15 miles west of Wonju, and Ichon, 12 miles farther west Tuesday without contacting Reds.

Apparently the Communists were throwing their main strength into twin drives down the Seoul-Suwon-Taejon highway and on the central road route through Wonju.

The Red Korean radio at Pyongyang was reported off the air since 8 a. m. Tuesday (6 p. m. EST, Monday.) B-29 superfortresses dumped 100 tons of bombs on the Red Korean capital Tuesday.

Foul weather slowed Fifth Air Force fighters and light bomber strikes.

B-26 light bombers hit several targets in the Seoul area Tuesday night and cratered the Pyongyang airfield.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—A brief surge of buying ran its course today in the stock market and left prices thoroughly mixed.

A two-dollar bill would easily cover the changes in either direction.

Every major category of stock—with one exception—was mixed. The radio-television group perked up and added a few cents to more than a dollar a share as the remainder of the market lagged.

Observers say there are indications now that the cutback in television production may not be nearly as high as the 25 to 50 per cent so widely predicted.

As another TV straw in the wind, Stromberg-Carlson increased prices on four receivers.

At the start of trading, the whole market moved ahead readily with little interference from sporadic selling.

Within a short time after the opening, the ticker tape dropped as much as a minute behind trading. This lasted only about five minutes. Steels, motors and rails gathered the most benefit from the brief buying spurt, and aircraft also added substantial sums without volume. At that time the radio-TV section drooped.

But before midday the modest gains outside radio-TV dropped away one by one to give the mixed tone to the market.

Rails were slightly higher in the bond market. In over the counter trading U. S. Governments were steady.

'Doomsday' Fails

Keremeos, B. C., Jan. 10 (AP)—Members of a strange religious cult who spent the past 15 days in a barred and shuttered cottage waiting for the end of the world apparently were ready to quit their self-exile today. Yesterday was supposed to be "Doomsday." Instead, it turned out to be just another Tuesday. The strange religious sect, which calls itself the "Children of Light" cult, had been confined in the cottage on the edge of this British Columbia town of 1,000 persons after members liquidated worldly property in anticipation of the "end of the world."

"TRADE WITH CAPPY AND BE HAPPY"

Sinclair Lewis, 66,

had been a patient with bronchial pneumonia since Dec. 31. Hospital attendants said he suffered also from an inflammation of the heart.

Creator of George Babbitt, the typical American businessman of the 1920's, Lewis made literary history also with such searching studies of American life as "Main Street," "Arrowsmith," "Elmer Gantry," "Dodsworth," "It Can't Happen Here" and "Kingsblood Royal."

Nobel Winner in 1930

He was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1930, chiefly for Babbitt. Four years before he had refused a Pulitzer Prize because he disagreed with the terms of Joseph Pulitzer's will setting up the prize.

His 21st book, "The God-Seeker," was published in 1949.

Born in Sauk Center, Minn., on Feb. 7, 1885, Lewis after student days at Yale and a minor career on newspapers and magazines, became one of the great social historians among American novelists. His books blasted the foibles of "typically American" people and communities of the 1920's and 1930's with biting satire and down-to-earth realism.

Put Main Street on Map

Amid ever-stormy controversy, he put Main Street on the map and Babbitt into the language.

"Elmer Gantry," story of an evangelist with unministerial appetites, aroused a religious storm. Business men railed at "Babbitt" and "Dodsworth."

Lewis was married twice. Both his first wife, Grace Livingstone Hegger, and Miss Thompson divorced him.

Wells Lewis, son by his first marriage and an army lieutenant in World War 2, was killed in action in France. Michael Lewis, his son by Miss Thompson, reportedly returned to the United States last week to visit his mother. He had been studying dramatics in London. The novelist's brother, Claude Lewis, lives in St. Cloud, Minn.

Appeared in Woodstock

Lewis appeared with the cast of "Shadow and Substance," written by Paul Vincent Carroll, August 15, 1940, at the Woodstock Playhouse in the role of the Very Rev. Thomas Canon Skerritt, a dominating cleric.

Retired Actress Dies

Nine States Due To Lose Seats in House, Seven Gain

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Congress appeared unwilling today to take any action to prevent nine states from losing seats in the House or to correct apportionment discrepancies pointed out by President Truman.

Late this month the clerk of the House will notify the governors of nine states that they will have fewer representatives in the Congress meeting in 1953 and seven others that they will have more House seats than at present.

The losing states were certified by the President yesterday in a special message transmitting an official report on the 1950 census. They are Arkansas, Idaho, Kentucky, Mississippi, and Tennessee, 1 each; Missouri, New York, and Oklahoma, 2 each; and Pennsylvania, 3.

Losses are due to population shifts or declines or increases of less than the national average. The 14 lost seats will be picked up by Texas, Virginia, Washington, Michigan and Maryland, 1 each; Florida, 2, and California, 7.

Up to States

It's up to the affected states to decide whether and how to realign their congressional districts because of changes in representation. If the states don't act, members from new districts must run for election from the state-at-large in 1952; in states losing districts, all members must run at-large if the state legislatures fail to redistrict.

The only thing Congress can do to keep any state from losing seats in the House is to increase the House membership, now fixed by law at 435.

The average representation, based on the 1940 census, was 300,000 people. It will be close to 350,000 under the 1950 census.

The President pointed out that about 50 congressional districts have less than 250,000 population, while 50 others have more than 450,000.

Due to Population Changes

"It seems to me desirable," he said, "that the Congress at this time should give its attention to this important problem and enact legislation * * * which would provide the states with standards for establishing congressional districts and indicate the congressional interest in compliance with such standards."

Many of the existing discrepancies have resulted from population changes, but others have grown out of the practice known as "gerrymandering" congressional districts.

For political purposes and to protect the controlling party, some state legislatures have changed the geographical shape of districts. This is done to get a segment of politically unfriendly voters out of a doubtful district and "buried" in a safe one. Or, friendly voters in a safe district are included in a doubtful one, thereby converting it into safe territory for the controlling party.

Two Women Hurt In Local Accident

Two women were injured in a traffic mishap at Ten Broeck avenue and Elmendorf street at 10:20 a. m., today.

Mrs. Nora Short, 67, of Port Ewen suffered injuries of the face and leg and shock, and Eunice Short Scully, 37, of Port Ewen, suffered an injury of the right shoulder. Both were treated at Kingston Hospital.

The sedan, operated by Mrs. Scully, was headed north on Ten Broeck avenue and a panel truck, owned by F. B. Matthews & Co., and operated by Henry Coppo, 12 South Pine street, was headed east on Elmendorf street when they were in collision, police said. Mrs. Short was riding in the Scully car, which was damaged in the front and was towed from the scene.

cessantly. Enemy mortar fire found the road.

"Allied soldiers with rifles lay on their stomachs in the snow."

The French-American force obviously was fighting to throw off balance the Communist drive down central Korea's mountain roads. The Red thrust threatened the Taejon-Taegu escape corridor for Eighth Army forces withdrawing in the west toward the old allied Pusan beachhead.

No Southeast Contact

While the Wonju battle raged, A.P. Correspondent John Randolph reported there was no contact southeast of Osan where Eighth Army forces were withdrawing.

Eighth Army officers said mud and snow may have slowed the Red advance but there was no lessening in the Communist buildup.

A.P. Correspondent Don Huth said Eighth Army reports indicated Communist tanks had moved into the Chechon area 30 miles southeast of Wonju.

Communist prisoners said they had heard tanks moving there two night ago. They said also that they had seen 1,000 to 3,000 Red troops six miles east of Chechon.

U.N. patrols likewise reported hearing tanks rumbling during their scouting of the area north of Chechon Tuesday night.

Area of Buildup

Eighth Army reports indicated one area of Red buildup was north of Yoju. Sizable numbers of Communist cavalry were sighted in this area. However, U. N. patrols entered both Yoju, 15 miles west of Wonju, and Ichon, 12 miles farther west Tuesday without contacting Reds.

Apparently the Communists were throwing their main strength into twin drives down the Seoul-Suwon-Taejon highway and on the central road route through Wonju.

The Red Korean radio at Pyongyang was reported off the air since 8 a. m. Tuesday (6 p. m. EST, Monday.) B-29 superfortresses dumped 100 tons of bombs on the Red Korean capital Tuesday.

Foul weather slowed Fifth Air Force fighters and light bomber strikes.

B-26 light bombers hit several targets in the Seoul area Tuesday night and cratered the Pyongyang airfield.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—A brief surge of buying ran its course today in the stock market and left prices thoroughly mixed.

A two-dollar bill would easily cover the changes in either direction.

Every major category of stock—with one exception—was mixed. The radio-television group perked up and added a few cents to more than a dollar a share as the remainder of the market lagged.

Observers say there are indications now that the cutback in television production may not be nearly as high as the 25 to 50 per cent so widely predicted.

As another TV straw in the wind, Stromberg-Carlson increased prices on four receivers.

At the start of trading, the whole market moved ahead readily with little interference from sporadic selling.

Within a short time after the opening, the ticker tape dropped as much as a minute behind trading. This lasted only about five minutes. Steels, motors and rails gathered the most benefit from the brief buying spurt, and aircraft also added substantial sums without volume. At that time the radio-TV section drooped.

But before midday the modest gains outside radio-TV dropped away one by one to give the mixed tone to the market.

Rails were slightly higher in the bond market. In over the counter trading U. S. Governments were steady.

'Doomsday' Fails

Keremeos, B. C., Jan. 10 (AP)—Members of a strange religious cult who spent the past 15 days in a barred and shuttered cottage waiting for the end of the world apparently were ready to quit their self-exile today. Yesterday was supposed to be "Doomsday." Instead, it turned out to be just another Tuesday. The strange religious sect, which calls itself the "Children of Light" cult, had been confined in the cottage on the edge of this British Columbia town of 1,000 persons after members liquidated worldly property in anticipation of the "end of the world."

Plan for Indo-China Push

Taipei, Formosa, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Nationalist Defense Ministry said today part of the Chinese Red forces in Korea are being moved back into China amid strong indications of plans for a push into Indo-China. Big Push

A man who's quite conceited
Is my big brother, Jim.
In fact, he joined the navy
To let the world see him.
—Mrs. Anna Herbert

There is far too much speeding and good citizens hope that the police will put a stop to it before some tragic accident involving children brings it into the headlines.

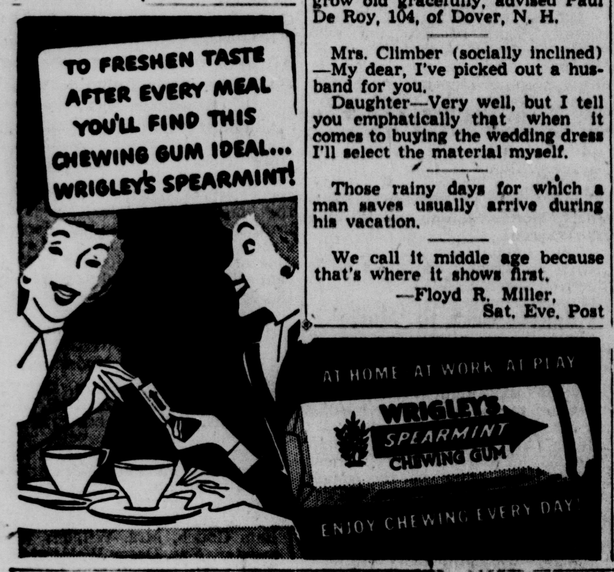

He—I'm a lady killer.
She—What do you do, starve them to death?

Most fathers are proud to have their sons fill their shoes, but it's carrying things too far when the kid fills the old man's socks, shirts, and suits, too.

Jack—Do you know where New York is?

Those people who have even the faintest resemblance to any game animals should stay out of the woods these days.

Proud Parent—Yes, he's a year old now, and he's been walking since he was eight months.
Friend—Really? He must be awfully tired!

Ralph—Clothes make the man, and the lack of it makes a woman.

Walk a brisk mile daily, and grow old gracefully, advised Paul De Roy, 104, of Dover, N. H.

Mrs. Climber (socially inclined)—My dear, I've picked out a husband for you.
Daughter—Very well, but I tell you emphatically that when it comes to buying the wedding dress I'll select the material myself.

Those rainy days for which a man saves usually arrive during his vacation.

Aliens Get Extra Day To Report Addresses

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—About 4,000,000 aliens living in this country today got 24 hours additional time in which to report their current addresses.

Instead of midnight tonight, the Immigration and Naturalization Service set midnight tomorrow as the deadline for reporting.

This was done, a spokesman for the service told a reporter, because of the language of notices calling upon aliens for reports, plus the fact the first day fell on New Year's Day. The notices said aliens had ten days "after Jan. 1" to report. Some thought the ten-day period might be interpreted as beginning Jan. 2.

All aliens living in the United States, except those temporarily admitted who have not overstayed their authorized period of admission, including students, must make reports.

These reports are required under the 1950 internal security act. Similar reports will be required each year.

Forms for reporting are available at all post offices. An alien must list, in addition to his current address, the country of his birth and country of citizenship. The reports are collected at post offices for forwarding to the Immigration and Naturalization Service here.

As Pegler Sees It

seem less and less valuable as a witness. One gets the feeling that Mr. Chambers is on trial and not Mr. Hiss."

On the contrary, "one" got "the feeling" that Eleanor Roosevelt was on trial along with Alger Hiss, for he was her friend and her late husband's accomplice in historic affairs which yet may prove to have sealed the doom of the United States. Moreover, Chambers told "unsavory facts" about his private life as a patriotic sacrifice whereas this woman had told many revolting facts about her family not for any patriotic purpose but to make money out of her books. But the final act of this citation is that she wrote this plea to reach the notice of the jury, knowing that an uncertain proportion of the American people are incapable of intelligent judgment when the name of "Roosevelt" is invoked.

The counsel for Hiss ignored this impudence.

But a few days later the same lawyer told the judge that we were paying too high a price for freedom of the press when a factual journalist covering the trial wrote pointedly about the conduct of the judge and of Justice Felix Frankfurter.

More recently, we had a similar experience in the Remington trial, which is more or less parallel to the Hiss case. William C. Chanler, defending a man who is alleged to have been a Communist and to have handed over stolen government documents to a Soviet spy, asked the court to admonish the reporters not to discuss such cases "on the eve and during the course of a criminal trial." In support of his proposal, Chanler cited a magazine article by "former Judge Rifkind on this subject, a copy of which is submitted herewith."

The offending truthful pretrial review of the Remington case had been written for the New York Journal-American by Howard Rushmore, formerly a Communist and now one of the most effective enemies of the treason in American journalism. The Rifkind referred to quit the federal bench and went straight to the law firm of Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton and Garrison.

Paul is Randolph Paul, formerly chief counsel of the treasury under Morgenthau, who composed a statement in which Elliott Roosevelt denied that he ever exploited his old man's position to trim suckers. The occasion was the expose of Elliott's dead-beat loan of $200,000 from John Hartford.

Weiss was Eleanor Roosevelt's late friend and Marshall Field's late councellor in his sinister career in pro-Soviet journalism. He was the brother of Carol Weiss King, the leading lawyer for accused Communists. He interfered flagrantly in the first Hiss trial and planted in the court room a psychiatrist, one Binger, to discredit Chambers, the principal accuser of Eleanor Roosevelt's guilty friend, Hiss. Binger's wife is the sister of the Garrison whose name winds up the interesting roster of this strange group. And Garrison, for a long time, has been active in the adjudication of massive union disputes involving Communist influence of ominous import to the stability of the United States of America.

Ticket Traps Thief

Tokyo, Jan. 10 (AP) — Kenji Uesugi woke up Sunday in a resort hotel to find a thief had taken all his clothes. In his coat was a reserved seat theatre ticket. With a detective, Uesugi went to the famed Kabuki Theatre of Japanese stage classics and there found the thief in Uesugi's seat and Uesugi's coat.

Casualty Report

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—A Defense Department casualty report (No. 197) today listed 353 names. Of the total 40 are dead, 295 wounded, four missing, and 14 injured in battle zone accidents.

Will Judge Papers In TB Project

A panel of five judges selected from Ulster county residents will choose outstanding entries among school papers participating here in the School Press Project, according to an announcement today by Katherine M. Murphy, R.N., secretary of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, which conducted the 1950 Christmas Seal Sale during the past couple of weeks.

Locally under the direction of the tuberculosis association, the project is jointly sponsored by the National Tuberculosis Association with which the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association is affiliated and by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Schools taking part in the project will feature, in the November and December issues of their student publications, articles, editorials, and cartoons on either of the following subjects: "What Facilities Does My Community Need to Control Tuberculosis?" and "How the Christmas Seal Fights Tuberculosis."

The Five Judges

County residents who will act as judges of the papers include: Dr. Robert H. Broad, Ulster county commissioner of health; C. Denman Raymond, member of the board of directors of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Association; Fred Hoffman, representing the Kingston Daily Freeman; Floyd Edinger, editor of the Ulster County News; and B. C. Van Ingen, retired superintendent of schools.

School papers participating in the project are: The Quill, Ellenville High School; The Flying Goose, Kerhonkson High School; Nepa Hi-Lites, New Paltz High School; Dame Rumor, Kingston High School; and MJM Chatter, Myron J. Michael School in Kingston.

Entries selected by the Ulster county judges will be sent to the State Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health where a state committee will choose nine outstanding papers which will be forwarded to the National Tuberculosis Association.

The final evaluation of the entries will be made by a nationally selected committee of health educators and journalists. Each school whose entry is approved by the national committee will be awarded a certificate of honor.

Spring's New Coat: Narrow and Belted

Variations on the spring coat story are shown in these designs. Philip Mangone creates a coat (left) in frosty white light-weight wool with small rolled collar and dramatic cuffs of smoky silver fox. Back has diamond-shaped fullness. A three-quarter length plaid coat by Vera Maxwell (center) has cuffed push-up sleeves, stand-up collar and wool jersey lining. It's in British wool. A coat, blouse and skirt costume by Pauline Trigere is in black-and-white salt-and-pepper tweed. Coat is piped in black velvet, has full back, turned-back, curving cuffs. Skirt is straight and black linen blouse is piped in black velvet.

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Staff Writer

New York — (NEA)—The narrow coat is the new coat this spring. It's companion to the sheath dress. Its cut is straight and frequently this coat is belted. The severity of this straight line is softened by bloused sleeves, by big, soft collars and by scarfs necklines.

But the loose cut with fullness is not gone yet. Designers know that women like the look of the pyramid coat so it's carrying over into spring.

There are fitted coats for spring, too, most often in the trumpet silhouette. The topper is new-looking in a barrel cut with curving contour. And there are more coats on the ensemble basis.

It seems that spring 1951 will be another navy spring. But new coats are also shown in black, in a greyed blue, in beige, violet and grey.

Sleeve treatments are significant in coat design this spring. They're bloused, loose, wide, short and cuffed. Often they're the push-up variety, allowing for change in glove lengths.

From Philip Mangone comes a spectacular coat in light-weight basket weave wool. The lines are simple and fluid. There's a small rolled collar and the back has a diamond-shaped fullness. Smoky silver fox is rolled into huge, dramatic cuffs.

Cuffed push-up sleeves appear in a plaid coat by Vera Maxwell. This is a three-quarter length coat with stand-up collar and rounded shoulders. Its lining is solid color wool jersey, for contrast.

The ensemble appears in a Pauline Trigere design, a black-and-white salt-and-pepper tweed. A perfectly straight skirt is topped by a matching coat piped in black velvet. The coat has curved cuffs and a full back. A blouse, in black linen, is also piped in black velvet.

Home Bureau Lists New Executives For Coming Year

New officers of the executive committee of the Ulster County Home Bureau were seated during the group's monthly meeting January 3. New officers are Mrs. William Powers of 192 Albany avenue, chairman; Miss William Douglas of Ellenville, vice chairman; and Mrs. Millard Davis of Kerhonkson, secretary.

New members elected at the 1950 annual meeting are Mrs. Paul Burton of Sawkill, Mrs. Robert Compitello of Saugerties, and Mrs. William Russell of Highland. Other members of the committee are Mrs. George Schwab of Kerhonkson, Mrs. George Sisti, Sr., of Plattekill, and Mrs. Hubert Stern-Montagny of Gardiner.

Each member of the committee sponsors one field of work, and several home bureau units. Assignments are as follows: Mrs. William Powers, citizenship, and the Lake Katrine, Wynkoop and Plank Road units; Mrs. William Douglas, housing, and the Ellenville, Yeagerville, Alligerville, and Stone Ridge units; Mrs. Millard Davis, family life, and the Accord, Kerhonkson, and High Falls units; Mrs. George Schwab, home management, institution management, and the Krippiebush, Tabasco, Tamakwa, and Hurley units; Mrs. Hubert Stern-Montagny, clothing, and the Forest Glen, Wallkill, and New Paltz units; Mrs. George Sisti, Sr., landscaping, and the Plattekill, Modena, and New Hurley units; Mrs. William Russell, foods, and nutrition, and the Highland, Milton, Clintondale, Port Ewen, and Tillson units; Mrs. Paul Burton, health, and the Sawkill, Lomontville, Overlook, Rifton, and Wiltwyck units; Mrs. Robert Compitello, recreation, including skits, group singing, book reviews, story telling, history, and folklore, and the Saugerties Day, Saugerties Evening, Saxton, Quarryville, Malden, Centerville, and Woodstock units.

Spring's New Coat: Narrow and Belted

Variations on the spring coat story are shown in these designs. Philip Mangone creates a coat (left) in frosty white light-weight wool with small rolled collar and dramatic cuffs of smoky silver fox. Back has diamond-shaped fullness. A three-quarter length plaid coat by Vera Maxwell (center) has cuffed push-up sleeves, stand-up collar and wool jersey lining. It's in British wool. A coat, blouse and skirt costume by Pauline Trigere is in black-and-white salt-and-pepper tweed. Coat is piped in black velvet, has full back, turned-back, curving cuffs. Skirt is straight and black linen blouse is piped in black velvet.

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Staff Writer

New York — (NEA)—The narrow coat is the new coat this spring. It's companion to the sheath dress. Its cut is straight and frequently this coat is belted. The severity of this straight line is softened by bloused sleeves, by big, soft collars and by scarfs necklines.

But the loose cut with fullness is not gone yet. Designers know that women like the look of the pyramid coat so it's carrying over into spring.

There are fitted coats for spring, too, most often in the trumpet silhouette. The topper is new-looking in a barrel cut with curving contour. And there are more coats on the ensemble basis.

It seems that spring 1951 will be another navy spring. But new coats are also shown in black, in a greyed blue, in beige, violet and grey.

Sleeve treatments are significant in coat design this spring. They're bloused, loose, wide, short and cuffed. Often they're the push-up variety, allowing for change in glove lengths.

From Philip Mangone comes a spectacular coat in light-weight basket weave wool. The lines are simple and fluid. There's a small rolled collar and the back has a diamond-shaped fullness. Smoky silver fox is rolled into huge, dramatic cuffs.

Cuffed push-up sleeves appear in a plaid coat by Vera Maxwell. This is a three-quarter length coat with stand-up collar and rounded shoulders. Its lining is solid color wool jersey, for contrast.

The ensemble appears in a Pauline Trigere design, a black-and-white salt-and-pepper tweed. A perfectly straight skirt is topped by a matching coat piped in black velvet. The coat has curved cuffs and a full back. A blouse, in black linen, is also piped in black velvet.

Bishops to Discuss Social Problems

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 10 (AP) — Protestant Episcopal Church policy in regard to social problems in urban centers will be taken up today by the Council of Bishops.

The discussion of such problems follows a busy session by more than 100 bishops of the church yesterday. Two bishops were charged with asking non-Episcopalians to take Holy Communion in their churches and it was urged not to seek draft deferments for seminary students.

The clergymen also heard a suggestion that the Episcopal marriage canon be changed to provide for a 30-day forced wait between request for remarriage and granting of church permission.

Bishop Angus Dun of Washington, D. C., and Bishop Charles F. Hall of New Hampshire each were charged with inviting members of other denominations to participate in Episcopal communion. On motion of Bishop Wallace E. Conkling of Chicago, however, it was decided to table the charges by referring them back to the parishes of the two. Some church members have said they believe the communion should be confined to Episcopalians.

In regard to drafting seminary students, the Rt. Rev. Henry W. Hobson, bishop of southern Ohio, urged that the church not "yield to the easier way" and ask for special deferments. He declared that wartime experiences had increased leadership abilities among such students. This, he said, more than made up for temporary shortage of clergy.

Kingston High and Newburgh Academy maintained their deadlock in the DUSO Basketball League's donnybrook race last night, but a new challenger loomed in the form of the powerful Ellenville High quintet that drubbed Monticello 56-48 on the Sullivan county boards.

A fighting Maroon squad closed fast to down a rugged Middletown quintet, 56-53, while N.F.A. momentarily stemmed the Fallsburg avalanche, 62-56 in Newburgh.

In its previous start, Ellenville had drubbed a fair to middling Liberty team, 67 to 44 on the Ellenville court.

Fouls Decide Game

In a wild see-saw battle in which the lead changed hands several times and the score was tied five times in the final period, the Kiasmen forced the Middies into three crucial fouls in the last two minutes of play.

On the three foul calls (all three for two shots in the last three minutes) Bones Hampton, Dick Schultz, and Leroy Hooker each delivered a conversion.

Hampton's deuce broke a 53-53 deadlock, while Schultz's shot came with seven seconds remaining and Hooker scored his after the game had ended. He was fouled at the buzzer.

Sparked by their ace center, Bob Brown, the Middies eked out an 11-10 quarter lead and clung to a 23-22 edge at the half.

Carpouzis Clicks

Middletown led 40-38 at the start of the final period, ran it to 42-38 before George Carpouzis drilled a layup and a hook shot for a 42-42 deadlock. Later it was 46-46 on another Carpouzis shot, then 51-51 when Charlie Newkirk scored on a followup.

At the 1:05 mark, Carpouzis, who drilled 11 points in the final period with a superb exhibition of clutch shooting, hit with a tap-in and it was 53-51. Brown then intercepted a Pete Camp pass and dribbled the length of the court for a layup that tied the score at 53-53.

Kingston forced the issue in the closing seconds with a driving attack that drew three Middletown fouls, each good for two shots. The Maroon cagers batted .500 on the six attempts and that proved the winning margin over a fast improving club that will be awfully tough from here on out on its own boards.

Brown, one of the really great players in the DUSO circuit, paced the home club with 23 points, while Fran Parry had 11.

Carpouzis paced the Maroon with 18 points, 11 of them in the clutch, while Leroy Hooker tossed in 13. Mol Leonard had 11 points and played his best all-round game of the season.

N.F.A. Tops Fallsburg

Matt Chrystal and Big Ed Gabron accounted 42 points between them as Newburgh turned back Fallsburg challenge, 62-56, at Newburgh. Bob Laskowitz tossed in 23 points for the Comets.

Jerry Laks, a top sharpshooter for Ellenville, accounted for 25 points in Ellenville's 56-48 triumph over Monticello, a setback that must have come as a shocker to mountain fans.

Tom Gloede dunked 14 points to spark Poughkeepsie's 50-37 conquest of Port Jervis.

Sugar Ray Awarded Neil Memorial

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Welterweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson boasted another prize possession today—the Edward J. Neil Memorial plaque.

Robinson was honored last night at the annual dinner of the New York Boxing Writers Association, receiving the award as the man who did the most for advancement of the sport during 1950. Joe Louis, an old friend of Robinson's, presented the plaque as some 300 guests looked on at the Waldorf Astoria.

The award, presented annually since 1938, is in memory of Neil, Associated Press boxing writer who was killed while serving as a correspondent in the Spanish civil war.

Robinson recently completed a European tour during which he won five fights.

Won 19 Bouts

Victorious in all 19 starts last year, Sugar Ray fought mostly middleweights and won the Pennsylvania version of the world middleweight title by defeating Robert Villemain at Philadelphia. He defended his welter crown for charity against Charlie Fusari. Robinson is slated to meet Jake LaMotta for the middleweight title at Chicago Feb. 14.

The James J. Walker Memorial award for service to the sport over a period of years was presented to Wilbur Wood, sports editor of the now defunct New York Sun, by James A. Farley, former chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Robinson, in receiving the plaque, paid tribute to his friend and long-time idol, Louis, whom he referred to as his "inspiration."

The bread the Orange-Sullivan Basketball League moguls cast on the waters is returning in the form of hard tack.

Withdrawal of the Kingston Recreations may precipitate wholesale defections all along the line. Whether this happens immediately, the long range prediction that the 1950-51 O-S setup will fold en toto before the termination of the schedule is not predicated on whimsy.

You will read of foldups caused by the manpower shortage and the national emergency. And hear little about the bungling, favoritism and short-sighted policies that were the real reasons for the O-S debacle.

That Kingston withdrew from the league does not establish any precedent. Kingston teams have been doing it since time immemorial. When they re-entered the fold last fall, we thought their prospects somewhat disenchanting. Crowds of 100 or less forecast early foreclosure on the Kingston franchise.

It would be facetious to insinuate that the O-S League has been sustained in order to justify the existence of basketball teams in Woodridge and Middletown, particularly in Woodridge, where paid professionals make a mockery of amateur talent recruited from mid-Hudson cities and towns. But sometimes you have to feel that way.

Weren't they the teams that kicked up all the stink about referees? And isn't this the real reason why the O-S League is torn apart with internal dissension that sooner or later will explode in the open? The referee problem, accentuated by sheer economics, has always been a weighty one for the O-S but the league has endeavored to maintain high standards of officiating.

But, as we get the story, came the day when a couple of clubs (our informant says Woodridge and Middletown) began to pressure the Hudson Valley Board of Approved Officials for the designation of certain pet referees for their games. This was in direct violation of an agreement they made at the start of the season with the Board.

Harold "Bus" Ochs of Newburgh was called in and the league agreed to entrust Ochs, one of the finest personalities in the history of Hudson valley basketball, with the responsibility of assigning referees for the various games. Ochs assented and it was presumed the question was settled once and for all.

Then the grinning figure of Lt. Joe Palone of West Point entered the picture. Palone is that balding arbiter who, somehow manages to maintain a perpetual grin while high school squads battle unto death and rival crowds tear their hearts out in close, riotous games.

Palone is a good official, to be sure. But when the board sent out notices asking approved officials to signify whether they wanted to handle O-S games, they sensibly enough set a deadline for answers. Palone's reply did not make the deadline. His name was left off the list of O-S officials and then the howl went up. And other incidents followed.

When a couple of clubs abrogated the early season agreement and demanded a voice in the selection of officials for their home games, the board took the only alternative it could to maintain its dignity and prestige. It served notice on the league that either the board assigned the referees, or there wouldn't be any approved officials working the league games.

When the board removed its arbiters from the O-S eligible list, the league was reduced to the position of having to use hometown referees. Then the ludicrous idea of having each team supply a referee was spawned. This maneuver in itself could produce nothing but chaos in the long run. Just wait and see.

That was the big reason why the Recs quit the O-S League. There were others which we will discuss in a later column.

Jayvee Rally Trips Middletown, 57-51

Telepas and Bower Spark Late Drive

K.H.S. Jayvees rallied with a 23-point fourth quarter to defeat the Middletown High school yearlings, 57-51, in last night's preliminary in Middletown.

Trailing 36-21 at halftime, the Maroons shaved four points off the Middletown lead in the fourth quarter and then shook George Telepas and "Mousey" Bower loose for a spree of baskets in the home stretch.

Outscored 23-18 from the field, the Middies cashed in on 15 foul conversions in 27 attempts, but the Maroon percentage was even better with 11 for 15.

Telepas emerged as high scorer with 17 points on seven fields and three fouls, while Bower's 16 markers were the result of six fields and four conversions.

Moore, Middletown center, poured in 19 points with seven fields and five fouls. Brown and Schuerholz each had nine.

Angels Drub 6th Ward In Y League, 98-68

East and Juhl Hit For 59 Points

Chez Emile spurted in the fourth quarter to defeat Elston Sports, 70-63, in last night's Y Basketball League feature, while Harry's Angels swamped the Sixth Ward, 98-68.

Lafayette "Champ" Holstein, playing only three periods because of an ankle injury, tossed in 27 points.

The Angels' Big Bill East and Andy Juhl ran riot against the Warders, with 30 and 29 points respectively.

In a see-saw battle in which the lead changed hands several times, Chez Emile trailed Elstons, 18-15, at the quarter. After a 33-33 halftime standoff, the winners picked up a point margin in the third period and then dominated the play in the closing minutes. The Chezzies actually picked up their victory margin from the foul line as both teams had 30 baskets.

Gallagher scored 14 for Chezzies. Red Priest and George Magley each had 17 for the losers, Hooker 14 and Brennan 11.

Sixth Ward was helpless against the driving and rebounding of East and Juhl. East accounted for a dozen baskets and Juhl had 13. George Holstein scored 12 points in his final appearance before entering the Navy.

Doug Lindsay's 16 markers paced Sixth Ward, with Gene Fitzgerald accounting for 12 and Scott and Harris ten apiece.

Kingston High and Newburgh Academy maintained their deadlock in the DUSO Basketball League's donnybrook race last night, but a new challenger loomed in the form of the powerful Ellenville High quintet that drubbed Monticello 56-48 on the Sullivan county boards.

A fighting Maroon squad closed fast to down a rugged Middletown quintet, 56-53, while N.F.A. momentarily stemmed the Fallsburg avalanche, 62-56 in Newburgh.

In its previous start, Ellenville had drubbed a fair to middling Liberty team, 67 to 44 on the Ellenville court.

Fouls Decide Game

In a wild see-saw battle in which the lead changed hands several times and the score was tied five times in the final period, the Kiasmen forced the Middies into three crucial fouls in the last two minutes of play.

On the three foul calls (all three for two shots in the last three minutes) Bones Hampton, Dick Schultz, and Leroy Hooker each delivered a conversion.

Hampton's deuce broke a 53-53 deadlock, while Schultz's shot came with seven seconds remaining and Hooker scored his after the game had ended. He was fouled at the buzzer.

Sparked by their ace center, Bob Brown, the Middies eked out an 11-10 quarter lead and clung to a 23-22 edge at the half.

Carpouzis Clicks

Middletown led 40-38 at the start of the final period, ran it to 42-38 before George Carpouzis drilled a layup and a hook shot for a 42-42 deadlock. Later it was 46-46 on another Carpouzis shot, then 51-51 when Charlie Newkirk scored on a followup.

At the 1:05 mark, Carpouzis, who drilled 11 points in the final period with a superb exhibition of clutch shooting, hit with a tap-in and it was 53-51. Brown then intercepted a Pete Camp pass and dribbled the length of the court for a layup that tied the score at 53-53.

Kingston forced the issue in the closing seconds with a driving attack that drew three Middletown fouls, each good for two shots. The Maroon cagers batted .500 on the six attempts and that proved the winning margin over a fast improving club that will be awfully tough from here on out on its own boards.

Brown, one of the really great players in the DUSO circuit, paced the home club with 23 points, while Fran Parry had 11.

Carpouzis paced the Maroon with 18 points, 11 of them in the clutch, while Leroy Hooker tossed in 13. Mol Leonard had 11 points and played his best all-round game of the season.

N.F.A. Tops Fallsburg

Matt Chrystal and Big Ed Gabron accounted 42 points between them as Newburgh turned back Fallsburg challenge, 62-56, at Newburgh. Bob Laskowitz tossed in 23 points for the Comets.

Jerry Laks, a top sharpshooter for Ellenville, accounted for 25 points in Ellenville's 56-48 triumph over Monticello, a setback that must have come as a shocker to mountain fans.

Tom Gloede dunked 14 points to spark Poughkeepsie's 50-37 conquest of Port Jervis.

Sugar Ray Awarded Neil Memorial

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Welterweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson boasted another prize possession today—the Edward J. Neil Memorial plaque.

Robinson was honored last night at the annual dinner of the New York Boxing Writers Association, receiving the award as the man who did the most for advancement of the sport during 1950. Joe Louis, an old friend of Robinson's, presented the plaque as some 300 guests looked on at the Waldorf Astoria.

The award, presented annually since 1938, is in memory of Neil, Associated Press boxing writer who was killed while serving as a correspondent in the Spanish civil war.

Robinson recently completed a European tour during which he won five fights.

Won 19 Bouts

Victorious in all 19 starts last year, Sugar Ray fought mostly middleweights and won the Pennsylvania version of the world middleweight title by defeating Robert Villemain at Philadelphia. He defended his welter crown for charity against Charlie Fusari. Robinson is slated to meet Jake LaMotta for the middleweight title at Chicago Feb. 14.

The James J. Walker Memorial award for service to the sport over a period of years was presented to Wilbur Wood, sports editor of the now defunct New York Sun, by James A. Farley, former chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Robinson, in receiving the plaque, paid tribute to his friend and long-time idol, Louis, whom he referred to as his "inspiration."

It served notice on the league that either the board assigned the referees, or there wouldn't be any approved officials working the league games.

When the board removed its arbiters from the O-S eligible list, the league was reduced to the position of having to use hometown referees. Then the ludicrous idea of having each team supply a referee was spawned. This maneuver in itself could produce nothing but chaos in the long run. Just wait and see.

That was the big reason why the Recs quit the O-S League. There were others which we will discuss in a later column.

Telepas and Bower Spark Late Drive

K.H.S. Jayvees rallied with a 23-point fourth quarter to defeat the Middletown High school yearlings, 57-51, in last night's preliminary in Middletown.

Trailing 36-21 at halftime, the Maroons shaved four points off the Middletown lead in the fourth quarter and then shook George Telepas and "Mousey" Bower loose for a spree of baskets in the home stretch.

Outscored 23-18 from the field, the Middies cashed in on 15 foul conversions in 27 attempts, but the Maroon percentage was even better with 11 for 15.

Telepas emerged as high scorer with 17 points on seven fields and three fouls, while Bower's 16 markers were the result of six fields and four conversions.

Moore, Middletown center, poured in 19 points with seven fields and five fouls. Brown and Schuerholz each had nine.

Angels Drub 6th Ward In Y League, 98-68

East and Juhl Hit For 59 Points

Chez Emile spurted in the fourth quarter to defeat Elston Sports, 70-63, in last night's Y Basketball League feature, while Harry's Angels swamped the Sixth Ward, 98-68.

Lafayette "Champ" Holstein, playing only three periods because of an ankle injury, tossed in 27 points.

The Angels' Big Bill East and Andy Juhl ran riot against the Warders, with 30 and 29 points respectively.

In a see-saw battle in which the lead changed hands several times, Chez Emile trailed Elstons, 18-15, at the quarter. After a 33-33 halftime standoff, the winners picked up a point margin in the third period and then dominated the play in the closing minutes. The Chezzies actually picked up their victory margin from the foul line as both teams had 30 baskets.

Gallagher scored 14 for Chezzies, Red Priest and George Magley each had 17 for the losers, Hooker 14 and Brennan 11.

Sixth Ward was helpless against the driving and rebounding of East and Juhl. East accounted for a dozen baskets and Juhl had 13. George Holstein scored 12 points in his final appearance before entering the Navy.

Doug Lindsay's 16 markers paced Sixth Ward, with Gene Fitzgerald accounting for 12 and Scott and Harris ten apiece.

Colonial, Inc. Appeals to Fans To Pledge Their Support for '51

Can-Am Decision Due At Saturday Meeting

The wholly academic question of whether Kingston fans want organized baseball continued in the city will have to be decided by the fans themselves, Ad Jones, president of Colonial City Baseball, Inc., said today.

And by Friday of this week!

Jones pointed out that Colonial City Baseball would not obligate itself for a Canadian-American League franchise unless the baseball fans of the area furnish evidence of their willingness to support OB in 1951.

"This can be done," Jones continued, "by calling me or dropping a card. The phone numbers are 1213 and 1484 and the address is Shufeldt street."

Meeting Saturday

The Canadian-American League franchise is Kingston's for the asking, but the decision must be given to Can-Am officials at the league meeting on Saturday in Schenectady.

"We have sufficient financial pledges to insure purchase of the franchise," he continued, "but what we want is concrete evidence on the part of the fans that they will support the team in better fashion than they have in the past.

"The Canadian-American League is the type of baseball that should appeal to Kingston fans. This is one of the finest leagues in organized ball and is operated by men of high calibre. We, of Colonial Baseball, are willing to do our share. Given the assurance that fans want baseball continued, we'll purchase the franchise at Saturday's meeting and proceed with plans for 1951."

So, Mr. Fan, if you'd like to see baseball remain in Kingston, now is the time to show your interest.

No-Can-Do 100%

Following a tradition of the past few years, the eight-team No-Can-Do Bowling League has filed a 100 per cent entry in the 15th annual Kingston Bowling Association's city tournament.

Frank Norman, league president, said the No-Can-Do League was happy to start the ball rolling for entries to the KBA tournament. Deadline is midnight, January 31.

The No-Can-Do teams and captains:
Frederick's—John Frederick
Pontiac Broadway Garage—John Lowe
Shultis Radio—William Mohr
Scholl's Butchers—Paul Trodler
Smith's Store—Gus Steigerwald
Schryver Lumber Co.—Frank Norman
Dittmar's Sundials—Harry Pierce
Rudolph's Plumbers—William Ferguson

The No-Can-Do League has been one of the most successful in the Kingston Bowling Association for the past several years. It uses a method of reshuffling lineups at stated intervals and has three banquets during a season.

Bowling

All secretaries in the Kingston Bowling Association are reminded that league averages as of Jan. 13 are official for the 1951 city tournament. Averages of that date should be filed immediately after that date with the association secretary.

Sam Moss had his weird hook under control last night, as he paced the Booster League with a 520 series on games of 169, 209 and 142. Eight others joined in a bumper crop of "500" triples.

R. Grossbohlin and Warren Senor each had 514; Andy Krom (224) and Rudy Hohenberger (213) both with 508; Bill Maisenhelder 507; W. Senor 506; A. Grossbohlin 505; Jimmy Morgan 204-504; B. Goldstein 483; and Robert Tierney 481.

Sandwiching 168 with 225 and 210, Clarence Herdman batted 603 in the Silver Palace League in a heavy pinfall spree that saw 22 series of 525 or better. Scott Vining hit for 210-213-594; Bill Mohr 225-538; Ray Otto 586; Joe Magnino 214-584; Ray Roux 237-681; J. Costello 201-577; Orv Van Alstyne and Roy Webber 200-559; Milton Arlensky 211-555; and Eddie Schupp 201-550.

Frank Grimaldi, Jr. hit the pocket steadily for 196-191-213-600 in the Central Rec wheel, while Chris Robinson pounded 230-591 and Joe Costello 213-579. Also top bracket were Joe Sangi 212-575; Ray Houghtaling 209-201-575; Charlie Gildersleeve 208-568.

J. Fatum pounded his series of 575 and Ad Schultz's 223 was high single in the Y Federation League. Fatum reeled off 211-178-186. Dick Little posted 217-546; B. Fatum 202-531; Howard Minard 511; Schultz 223-507; Ed Himmelsback 490. Ronnie Hudler had 211; Robert Fatum 202 and Doug Harvey 200.

L. Jordan's 466 was top series in the Business Girls League on the Bowlatorium planks. The list of "400" shooters included L. La Rocca 457; E. Ccully 451; Helen Buchholtz 437; D. Zehentner 435; J. Rappleyea 426; E. Sass 425; H. Harris 420; A. Zoda 413; S. Collins 406 and S. O'Bryan 403.

Gardenaid Tractors tied the high team single record of 903 scratch in the Friendship League last night, as Evelyn Dolson returned to action for the first time since Oct. 17. In equalling the mark earlier by J. Ellis Briggs, the Gardenaid keglerettes rolled as follows: Ev Dolson 471, A. Meller 427, Marge Mellert 554, Bea Arlensky 517 and Florence Kelder 487.

Marge Mellert pounded the pocket in brisk fashion to lead the league with a resounding 554 series on games of 189, 196 and 169. Runnersup Bea Arlensky and Ada Markle each had 517, Marge Van Alstyne and Marge Jansen 503 each, Kay Brodhead 502; T. Carpenter 210-499; Jo Smith 495; Caroline Mohr 488, F. Kelder 487, Eleanor Singer 485.

Evelyn Gross, who appeared in only two games, rolled high single of 218.

Holman Warns Possession Style Clubs May Have Schedule Boycotts Ahead

Says Sports Must Stay Entertaining

New York, Jan. 10 (AP) — Nat Holman added his voice to basketball's "should-we-freeze-out-the-freezers" controversy today by warning that slowdown teams may become subject to schedule boycotts.

"I don't know how feasible it would be to try to legislate against this uninteresting style of basketball," the dapper coach of CCNY's grand slam champions said. "I do know you can't sell that kind of show to the public.

"We must remember we are in the entertainment business as well as sports and that we have a definite responsibility to the fans.

"I feel that teams which insist on playing possession basketball may find it difficult to get a schedule. The big teams in cities may find them unprofitable."

Holman's 1950 tournament sensations have had their troubles this year with hold-the-ball adversaries, dropping decisions to Missouri, Oklahoma and Arizona, all slowdown teams, and to St. John's, which used the possession style to a degree.

In the last three of those games, however, CCNY was without the full services of its great pivot star, Ed Warner, who has a leg injury.

The University of Texas' Jack Gray, a member of the rules committee, predicted earlier this week that a rule may be made in the near future to limit the time a team may control the ball without taking a shot at the basket.

White Sparks LIU To 10th Straight

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—If you can't shackle Sherman White, don't expect to beat the Long Island University basketball team.

That's what Coach Ed Hickey of St. Louis said before his Billikens met LIU last night. They couldn't stop the player Hickey called the "best big man in basketball" and unbeaten Long Island rallied to defeat St. Louis, 74-62, for its 10th straight victory.

The 6-foot 7-inch White proved the difference with 24 points and great rebounding.

St. Louis made up a 11-point deficit early in the second half and led LIU, 46-45, with 11 minutes to go. Ray Sonnenberg, the Billiken star, left on fouls shortly after and LIU pulled away with 10 straight points. St. Louis now has an 11-3 record.

They Play at Night

St. Louis (AP)—For the second straight year the St. Louis Cardinals will open their home season with a night game. The Red Birds, under new manager Marty Marion, will face the Chicago Cubs on Friday, April 20.

Surf water is more dangerous to swimmers than is the swirling motion of the waves; every bubble lessens the density of the water.

One Arrested in Raid On Alleged Policy Bank

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The alleged operator of a $5,000 to $10,000 weekly policy bank in West Harlem was held in $5,000 bail for the Court of Special Sessions in night court by Magistrate Vernon Riddeck last night.

John Figueroa, 40, of 53-34 96th street, Corona, Queens, was arrested last night by plainclothes police of the Manhattan Borough Headquarters in the basement room at 446 West 125th street, where police say he had been operating a policy bank.

Lieutenant Conrad Jensen, who headed the raid, said Figueroa told him he had been operating the bank for two months. He was quoted as saying that he bought out the previous operator because "it was too hot for him." The other operator, he said, left for Cuba, according to police.

In the basement room where Figueroa was arrested police said they found between 1,000 and 1,500 bet slips. Lieutenant Jensen said Figueroa employed about 20 runners and three "pickup men" in the west Harlem section.

The slips found in the basement room represented about 25,000 plays for the day, police said, amounting to about $2,000.

Figueroa, who gave his occupation as a ship's steward, had been under surveillance by police for several days.

Figueroa, police said, took bets ranging between two cents and $5 and paid off at odds of 600 to 1 on the totals paid for win, place and show for the first seven races at Tropical Park, Florida.

Working on Defense

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 10 (AP)—A proposed build-up of New Jersey's civil defenses was on the agenda of the State Legislature today for prompt action. Immediately after the formal opening of the 1951 Legislature yesterday, administration bills were introduced to raise the state's civil defense appropriation ten-fold to $250,000 and authorize interstate mutual military aid and civil defense compacts.

Colonial, Inc. Appeals to Fans To Pledge Their Support for '51

Can-Am Decision Due At Saturday Meeting

The wholly academic question of whether Kingston fans want organized baseball continued in the city will have to be decided by the fans themselves, Ad Jones, president of Colonial City Baseball, Inc., said today.

And by Friday of this week!

Jones pointed out that Colonial City Baseball would not obligate itself for a Canadian-American League franchise unless the baseball fans of the area furnish evidence of their willingness to support OB in 1951.

"This can be done," Jones continued, "by calling me or dropping a card. The phone numbers are 1213 and 1484 and the address is Shufeldt street."

Meeting Saturday

The Canadian-American League franchise is Kingston's for the asking, but the decision must be given to Can-Am officials at the league meeting on Saturday in Schenectady.

"We have sufficient financial pledges to insure purchase of the franchise," he continued, "but what we want is concrete evidence on the part of the fans that they will support the team in better fashion than they have in the past.

"The Canadian-American League is the type of baseball that should appeal to Kingston fans. This is one of the finest leagues in organized ball and is operated by men of high calibre. We, of Colonial Baseball, are willing to do our share. Given the assurance that fans want baseball continued, we'll purchase the franchise at Saturday's meeting and proceed with plans for 1951."

So, Mr. Fan, if you'd like to see baseball remain in Kingston, now is the time to show your interest.

No-Can-Do 100%

Following a tradition of the past few years, the eight-team No-Can-Do Bowling League has filed a 100 per cent entry in the 15th annual Kingston Bowling Association's city tournament.

Frank Norman, league president, said the No-Can-Do League was happy to start the ball rolling for entries to the KBA tournament. Deadline is midnight, January 31.

The No-Can-Do teams and captains:
Frederick's—John Frederick
Pontiac Broadway Garage—John Lowe
Shultis Radio—William Mohr
Scholl's Butchers—Paul Trodler
Smith's Store—Gus Steigerwald
Schryver Lumber Co.—Frank Norman
Dittmar's Sundials—Harry Pierce
Rudolph's Plumbers—William Ferguson

The No-Can-Do League has been one of the most successful in the Kingston Bowling Association for the past several years. It uses a method of reshuffling lineups at stated intervals and has three banquets during a season.

Bowling

All secretaries in the Kingston Bowling Association are reminded that league averages as of Jan. 13 are official for the 1951 city tournament. Averages of that date should be filed immediately after that date with the association secretary.

Sam Moss had his weird hook under control last night, as he paced the Booster League with a 520 series on games of 169, 209 and 142. Eight others joined in a bumper crop of "500" triples.

R. Grossbohlin and Warren Senor each had 514; Andy Krom (224) and Rudy Hohenberger (213) both with 508; Bill Maisenhelder 507; W. Senor 506; A. Grossbohlin 505; Jimmy Morgan 204-504; B. Goldstein 483; and Robert Tierney 481.

Sandwiching 168 with 225 and 210, Clarance Herdman batted 603 in the Silver Palace League in a heavy pinfall spree that saw 22 series of 525 or better. Scott Vining hit for 210-213-594; Bill Mohr 225-538; Ray Otto 586; Joe Magnino 214-584; Ray Roux 237-681; J. Costello 201-577; Orv Van Alstyne and Roy Webber 200-559; Milton Arlensky 211-555; and Eddie Schupp 201-550.

Frank Grimaldi, Jr. hit the pocket steadily for 196-191-213-600 in the Central Rec wheel, while Chris Robinson pounded 230-591 and Joe Costello 213-579. Also top bracket were Joe Sangi 212-575; Ray Houghtaling 209-201-575; Charlie Gildersleeve 208-563.

J. Fatum pounded his series of 575 and Ad Schultz's 223 was high single in the Y Federation League. Fatum reeled off 211-178-186. Dick Little posted 217-546; B. Fatum 202-531; Howard Minard 511; Schultz 223-507; Ed Himmelsback 490. Ronnie Hudler had 211; Robert Fatum 202 and Doug Harvey 200.

L. Jordan's 466 was top series in the Business Girls League on the Bowlatorium planks. The list of "400" shooters included L. La Rocca 457; E. Ccully 451; Helen Buchholtz 437; D. Zehentner 435; J. Rappleyea 426; E. Sass 425; H. Harris 420; A. Zoda 413; S. Collins 406 and S. O'Bryan 403.

Gardenaid Tractors tied the high team single record of 903 scratch in the Friendship League last night, as Evelyn Dolson returned to action for the first time since Oct. 17. In equalling the mark earlier by J. Ellis Briggs, the Gardenaid keglerettes rolled as follows: Ev Dolson 471, A. Meller 427, Marge Mellert 554, Bea Arlensky 517 and Florence Kelder 487.

Marge Mellert pounded the pocket in brisk fashion to lead the league with a resounding 554 series on games of 189, 196 and 169. Runnersup Bea Arlensky and Ada Markle each had 517, Marge Van Alstyne and Marge Jansen 503 each, Kay Brodhead 502; T. Carpenter 210-499; Jo Smith 495; Caroline Mohr 488, F. Kelder 487, Eleanor Singer 485.

Evelyn Gross, who appeared in only two games, rolled high single of 218.

WORK HORSE?

Mrs. Konstanty and son, Jimmy, 9, do the pushing as Jim Konstanty, record-setting workhorse of the Philadelphia Phillies' pitching staff, slides downhill with daughter, Helen, 6, near their home in Worcester, N. Y. Konstanty was proclaimed 1950's male "athlete of the year," Jan. 8, in the annual Associated Press poll. (AP Wirephoto)

Holman Warns Possession Style Clubs May Have Schedule Boycotts Ahead

Says Sports Must Stay Entertaining

New York, Jan. 10 (AP) — Nat Holman added his voice to basketball's "should-we-freeze-out-the-freezers" controversy today by warning that slowdown teams may become subject to schedule boycotts.

"I don't know how feasible it would be to try to legislate against this uninteresting style of basketball," the dapper coach of CCNY's grand slam champions said. "I do know you can't sell that kind of show to the public.

"We must remember we are in the entertainment business as well as sports and that we have a definite responsibility to the fans.

"I feel that teams which insist on playing possession basketball may find it difficult to get a schedule. The big teams in cities may find them unprofitable."

Holman's 1950 tournament sensations have had their troubles this year with hold-the-ball adversaries, dropping decisions to Missouri, Oklahoma and Arizona, all slowdown teams, and to St. John's, which used the possession style to a degree.

In the last three of those games, however, CCNY was without the full services of its great pivot star, Ed Warner, who has a leg injury.

The University of Texas' Jack Gray, a member of the rules committee, predicted earlier this week that a rule may be made in the near future to limit the time a team may control the ball without taking a shot at the basket.

White Sparks LIU To 10th Straight

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—If you can't shackle Sherman White, don't expect to beat the Long Island University basketball team.

That's what Coach Ed Hickey of St. Louis said before his Billikens met LIU last night. They couldn't stop the player Hickey called the "best big man in basketball" and unbeaten Long Island rallied to defeat St. Louis, 74-62, for its 10th straight victory.

Long Island ranks fourth and St. Louis fifth in this week's Associated Press poll of the country's top teams. The way they battled showed why.

The 6-foot 7-inch White proved the difference with 24 points and great rebounding.

St. Louis made up a 11-point deficit early in the second half and led LIU, 46-45, with 11 minutes to go. Ray Sonnenberg, the Billiken star, left on fouls shortly after and LIU pulled away with 10 straight points. St. Louis now has an 11-3 record.

They Play at Night

St. Louis (AP)—For the second straight year the St. Louis Cardinals will open their home season with a night game. The Red Birds, under new manager Marty Marion, will face the Chicago Cubs on Friday, April 20.

Swimmers Surf

One Arrested in Raid On Alleged Policy Bank

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The alleged operator of a $5,000 to $10,000 weekly policy bank in West Harlem was held in $5,000 bail for the Court of Special Sessions in night court by Magistrate Vernon Riddeck last night.

John Figueroa, 40, of 53-34 96th street, Corona, Queens, was arrested last night by plainclothes police of the Manhattan Borough Headquarters in the basement room at 446 West 125th street, where police say he had been operating a policy bank.

Lieutenant Conrad Jensen, who headed the raid, said Figueroa told him he had been operating the bank for two months. He was quoted as saying that he bought out the previous operator because "it was too hot for him." The other operator, he said, left for Cuba, according to police.

In the basement room where Figueroa was arrested police said they found between 1,000 and 1,500 bet slips. Lieutenant Jensen said Figueroa employed about 20 runners and three "pickup men" in the west Harlem section.

The slips found in the basement room represented about 25,000 plays for the day, police said, amounting to about $2,000.

Figueroa, who gave his occupation as a ship's steward, had been under surveillance by police for several days.

Figueroa, police said, took bets ranging between two cents and $5 and paid off at odds of 600 to 1 on the totals paid for win, place and show for the first seven races at Tropical Park, Florida.

Working on Defense

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 10 (AP)—A proposed build-up of New Jersey's civil defenses was on the agenda of the State Legislature today for prompt action. Immediately after the formal opening of the 1951 Legislature yesterday, administration bills were introduced to raise the state's civil defense appropriation ten-fold to $250,000 and authorize interstate mutual military aid and civil defense compacts.

Article No. 14

Your Income Tax Primer

By RICHARD A. MULLENS
NEA Special Correspondent

The hardest part is over. If you have followed the previous articles, you now have your income added up and you know what deductions can be claimed if you so choose.

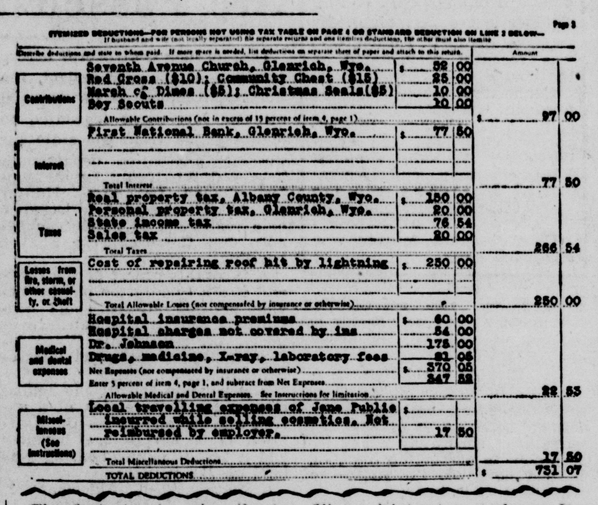

This article tells you how to select the best way to compute your tax.

If your adjusted gross income (Item 4, Page 1, of Form 1040) is less than $5000 and you do not have deductions which total more than 10% of Item 4, compute your tax by using the Tax Table on Page 4. Article 11 gives detailed instructions on the use of the Tax Table.

Those of you who do not use the Tax Table must use the tax computation schedule on Page 3 to compute your tax.

Even though your adjusted gross income is under $5000, you should use the tax computation schedule on Page 3 if your itemized deductions exceed 10% of your adjusted gross income. You must use the tax computation schedule on Page 3 if your adjusted gross income (Item 4, Page 1, of Form 1040) is $5000 or more.

Many taxpayers will not be sure whether their deductions exceed 10% of their adjusted gross income until they actually list the deductions on Page 3 of the return. Note how John and Jane Public have listed their deductions. It would be acceptable to any Internal Revenue auditor unless, out of past experience or for some special reason, he was suspicious of the deductions. In that case he would require the Publics to explain how they figured their deductions.

Describe deductions and state to whom paid. If more space is needed, list deductions on separate sheet of paper and attach to this return.			Amount

	TOTAL DEDUCTIONS		$ 731 07

The first step in using the tax computation schedule on Page 3 is to enter your adjusted gross income (Item 4, Page 1, of Form 1040) on Line 1. What you enter in Line 2 is important. Here are some rules to help you:

If you are a married person filing a separate return and your Item 4, Page 1 of the return is under $5,000, you can either enter your itemized deductions on Line 2 or use the Tax Table on Page 4—whichever gives the smaller tax. Remember, if one spouse itemizes his deductions, the other spouse must also itemize deductions. If Item 4 is over $5000, use your itemized deductions or $500, whichever is greater, on Line 2.

If you are single or married and filing a joint return and your Item 4 is under $5000, use your itemized deductions or the Tax Table on Page 4, as explained in the 11th article — whichever gives the smaller tax. If Item 4 is between $5000 and $10,000, show 10% of Item 4 in Line 2, or your itemized deductions, whichever is greater. If Item 4 is more than $10,000, show $1000 in Line 2 or your own deductions, whichever is greater.

Some of the lines of this schedule are used only when a separate return is being filed and other lines are used only when a joint return for husband and wife is being filed. To show the difference, computations for a separate return and a joint return will be filled out side-by-side.

TAX COMPUTATION—FOR PERSONS NOT USING TAX TABLE ON PAGE 4

1. Enter amount shown in item 4, page 1. This is your Adjusted Gross Income	$ 6950	47	$ 6950	47
2. Enter DEDUCTIONS. If deductions are itemized above, enter the total ... adjusted gross income (line 1, above) is $5,000 or more and deductions are not itemized ... percent of line 1, above, or $1,000, whichever is the lesser, or $500 if this is ...	731	07	731	07
3. Subtract line 2 from line 1. Enter the difference here	$ 6291	40	6219	40
4. Multiply $600 by total number of exemptions claimed	3000	00	3000	00
5. Subtract line 4 from line 3. Enter difference here	$ 3219	40	3219	40
Lines 6, 7, and 8 should be filled in ONLY by a single person or a married person making a separate return
6. Use the tax rates shown on page 16 of Instructions to figure your tentative tax on amount shown in line 5 (if line 5 above, includes partially tax-exempt interest, see Instructions). Enter the tentative tax here	$ 668	27

The Tentative Tax shown on Line 6 or Line 10 is computed from the table in the instructions furnished with the return.

In the returns shown here, the tax is $592.13 for a separate return and $560.18 for a joint return. The difference is caused by the income-splitting feature of a joint return.

Lines 14, through 17 of the Tax Computation Schedule will apply to only a few taxpayers.

Line 14 is for the benefit of those with big long-term capital gains. It does not affect you unless your Item 4, Page 1, was more than $20,000 (or $40,000 in case of a joint return).

If you took the standard deduction, ignore Lines 15, 16, and 17. If you itemize deductions you can use these lines to subtract income tax payments to a foreign country or U. S. possession and income tax paid at source on tax-free covenant bond interest.

Line 18 is the amount of tax due Uncle Sam on your 1950 income. You have probably already paid all or most of it through withholding or Declarations of Estimated Tax. There is one more step, explained in the next article, to find out whether you owe more tax or have a refund coming.

Tax Primer Q. and A.

Q. If my wife and I file separate returns, can I itemize all of our deductions and my wife take the standard deduction?

A. No. If either spouse itemizes deductions, the other must also even though he may only have a few dollars of deductions.

Q. Suppose the Publics' deductions as itemized on Page 3 had totaled only $500. What should they put on Line 2 of the Tax Computation Schedule?

A. $695.05. They can enter their itemized deductions OR 10% of their adjusted gross income, whichever is larger. However, the standard deduction for a joint return cannot exceed $1000.

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

I have been loaned so much splendid material by residents of Ulster county that many times I don't know what to use first. William Van der Lee of High Falls loaned me a mammoth book covering the "Colonial Settlements on the Hudson" and New York Historical Records which runs over 600 pages. One record is of an Indian Deed to Lewis Dubois and others for land in Ulster county, dated 26th of May 1677, pursuant to a license from the Hon. Governor Edmond Andros. The names and signature marks of the Indians are given. I notice that the Indians didn't always use the same marks, but just scribbled something next to their name, which looks like short hand, as I compared several of them.

One of these deeds of 1677 reads in part: "then north along the river to the island, lying in the Crum Elbow at the beginning of the Long Reach, by the Indians called Raphoos . . . including between these boundaries all contained therein, hills, valleys, waters etc., and a free passage to the Rondout Kil as convenient, as it may be found. The Indians shall also have fully as much liberty and license to hunt all kind of wild animal and to fish, as the Christians. This land the Indians have engaged to sell for the goods specified here below." Then they list such items as: 40 kettles, 10 large, 30 small, 40 axes, 40 shirts, 100 fathoms of white wampum, 60 pairs of socks, one half of them small ones, 100 bars of lead, 1 keg of powder, 100 knives, 40 ancres of wine, 40 guns, 60 duffels coats, 60 blankets and 100 nails.

This for the younger generation who think the tomahawk, a hatchet used by the North American Indians, was exclusively the savage's idea should read the "American Craftsman" by Williamson starting Page 16, from which I quote: "If any one thing deserves to be the symbol of American conquest it is the axe. It is a simple implement, yet it is the difference between civilized and primitive races. The American Indian had no axe, for he had no iron. When he needed a log he was compelled to use one which had fallen of itself." Of course I have seen a chiseled stone attached to a wooden handle called a "tomahawk." He further states, "The axe that first came to America found an immediate exchange value with the Indians and hence quickly became known as the 'trade axe.' The top edge of its blade forms a right angle with the handle in a manner which most of us associate with the Indian 'tomahawk.' As a matter of fact, this deadly head-splitter was a conception of early American blacksmiths, a miniature model of the standard 'trade axe.'

I am just wondering if even back in the 1677 period, the colonists were not sorry from time to time when thex exchanged weapons, such as axes, and kegs of powder, knives and ancres of wine for land, for the savages made war on the colonists with these same weapons. History continues to repeat itself even today, it seems. These records prove over and over again, that the colonists paid for all their land with articles wanted by the savages. There are signatures and names to prove it.

City Wants Cut

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—A bill to authorize the city of Yonkers to collect revenue from the Empire City Harness Race Track has been introduced again in the Legislature. An identical measure died last year in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. Senator William F. Condon and Assemblyman Malcolm Wilson, Yonkers Republicans, are the sponsors. The measure would license the track at a maximum rate of $3,500 per racing day, and levy a city tax on the track's parimutuel betting pool of one per cent on the first $200,000 of the daily handle; 1.5 per cent on the next $350,000 and two per cent on wagering over $550,000. No increase would be made in the present 15 per cent "bite" on the total amount bet. The city's levy would be deducted from both state and track shares of the 15 per cent.

His father, John Joseph Smith, 55, who was driving him back to school from their home at (5020 192nd street) Flushing, N. Y., was taken to Cameron Hospital in Bryan with a brain concussion and a possible skull fracture. Police said the Smith car hit the side of a Cincinnati Northern locomotive pulling a freight train.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—New Yorkers were cautioned today not to get excited if they hear sirens wailing at noon Saturday. It won't be an air raid alarm—just New Jersey testing. Civil Defense Director Arthur W. Wallander said New Jersey sirens would be tested at that time each Saturday, beginning this week.

Your Income Tax Primer

By RICHARD A. MULLENS
NEA Special Correspondent

The hardest part is over. If you have followed the previous articles, you now have your income added up and you know what deductions can be claimed if you so choose.

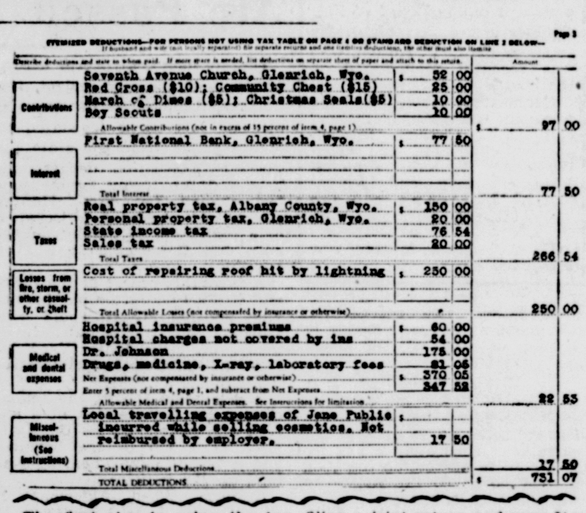

This article tells you how to select the best way to compute your tax.

If your adjusted gross income (Item 4, Page 1, of Form 1040) is less than $5000 and you do not have deductions which total more than 10% of Item 4, compute your tax by using the Tax Table on Page 4. Article 11 gives detailed instructions on the use of the Tax Table.

Those of you who do not use the Tax Table must use the tax computation schedule on Page 3 to compute your tax.

Even though your adjusted gross income is under $5000, you should use the tax computation schedule on Page 3 if your itemized deductions exceed 10% of your adjusted gross income. You must use the tax computation schedule on Page 3 if your adjusted gross income (Item 4, Page 1, of Form 1040) is $5000 or more.

Many taxpayers will not be sure whether their deductions exceed 10% of their adjusted gross income until they actually list the deductions on Page 3 of the return. Note how John and Jane Public have listed their deductions. It would be acceptable to any Internal Revenue auditor unless, out of past experience or for some special reason, he was suspicious of the deductions. In that case he would require the Publics to explain how they figured their deductions.

The first step in using the tax computation schedule on Page 3 is to enter your adjusted gross income (Item 4, Page 1, of Form 1040) on Line 1. What you enter in Line 2 is important. Here are some rules to help you:

If you are a married person filing a separate return and your Item 4, Page 1 of the return is under $5,000, you can either enter your itemized deductions on Line 2 or use the Tax Table on Page 4 —whichever gives the smaller tax. Remember, if one spouse itemizes his deductions, the other spouse must also itemize deductions. If Item 4 is over $5000, use your itemized deductions or $500, whichever is greater, on Line 2.

If you are single or married and filing a joint return and your Item 4 is under $5000, use your itemized deductions or the Tax Table on Page 4, as explained in the 11th article — whichever gives the smaller tax. If Item 4 is between $5000 and $10,000, show 10% of Item 4 in Line 2, or your itemized deductions, whichever is greater. If Item 4 is more than $10,000, show $1000 in Line 2 or your own deductions, whichever is greater.

Some of the lines of this schedule are used only when a separate return is being filed and other lines are used only when a joint return for husband and wife is being filed. To show the difference, computations for a separate return and a joint return will be filled out side-by-side.

Taxpayer with 5 exemptions filing separate return

Joint return with same income and 5 exemptions

The Tentative Tax shown on Line 6 or Line 10 is computed from the table in the instructions furnished with the return.

In the returns shown here, the tax is $592.13 for a separate return and $560.18 for a joint return. The difference is caused by the income-splitting feature of a joint return.

Lines 14, through 17 of the Tax Computation Schedule will apply to only a few taxpayers.

Line 14 is for the benefit of those with big long-term capital gains. It does not affect you unless your Item 4, Page 1, was more than $20,000 (or $40,000 in case of a joint return).

If you took the standard deduction, ignore Lines 15, 16, and 17. If you itemize deductions you can use these lines to subtract income tax payments to a foreign country or U. S. possession and income tax paid at source on tax-free covenant bond interest.

Line 18 is the amount of tax due Uncle Sam on your 1950 income. You have probably already paid all or most of it through withholding or Declarations of Estimated Tax. There is one more step, explained in the next article, to find out whether you owe more tax or have a refund coming.

Tax Primer Q. and A.

Q. If my wife and I file separate returns, can I itemize all of our deductions and my wife take the standard deduction?

A. No. If either spouse itemizes deductions, the other must also even though he may only have a few dollars of deductions.

Q. Suppose the Publics' deductions as itemized on Page 3 had totaled only $500. What should they put on Line 2 of the Tax Computation Schedule?

A. $695.05. They can enter their itemized deductions OR 10% of their adjusted gross income, whichever is larger. However, the standard deduction for a joint return cannot exceed $1000.

Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

I have been loaned so much splendid material by residents of Ulster county that many times I don't know what to use first. William Van der Lee of High Falls loaned me a mammoth book covering the "Colonial Settlements on the Hudson" and New York Historical Records which runs over 600 pages. One record is of an Indian Deed to Lewis Dubois and others for land in Ulster county, dated 26th of May 1677, pursuant to a license from the Hon. Governor Edmond Andros. The names and signature marks of the Indians are given. I notice that the Indians didn't always use the same marks, but just scribbled something next to their name, which looks like short hand, as I compared several of them.

One of these deeds of 1677 reads in part: "then north along the river to the island, lying in the Crum Elbow at the beginning of the Long Reach, by the Indians called Raphoos . . . including between these boundaries all contained therein, hills, valleys, waters etc., and a free passage to the Rondout Kil as convenient, as it may be found. The Indians shall also have fully as much liberty and license to hunt all kind of wild animal and to fish, as the Christians. This land the Indians have engaged to sell for the goods specified here below." Then they list such items as: 40 kettles, 10 large, 30 small, 40 axes, 40 shirts, 100 fathoms of white wampum, 60 pairs of socks, one half of them small ones, 100 bars of lead, 1 keg of powder, 100 knives, 40 ancres of wine, 40 guns, 60 duffels coats, 60 blankets and 100 nails.

This for the younger generation who think the tomahawk, a hatchet used by the North American Indians, was exclusively the savage's idea should read the "American Craftsman" by Williamson starting Page 16, from which I quote: "If any one thing deserves to be the symbol of American conquest it is the axe. It is a simple implement, yet it is the difference between civilized and primitive races. The American Indian had no axe, for he had no iron. When he needed a log he was compelled to use one which had fallen of itself." Of course I have seen a chiseled stone attached to a wooden handle called a "tomahawk." He further states, "The axe that first came to America found an immediate exchange value with the Indians and hence quickly became known as the 'trade axe.' The top edge of its blade forms a right angle with the handle in a manner which most of us associate with the Indian 'tomahawk.' As a matter of fact, this deadly head-splitter was a conception of early American blacksmiths, a miniature model of the standard 'trade axe.'

I am just wondering if even back in the 1677 period, the colonists were not sorry from time to time when thex exchanged weapons, such as axes, and kegs of powder, knives and ancres of wine for land, for the savages made war on the colonists with these same weapons. History continues to repeat itself even today, it seems. These records prove over and over again, that the colonists paid for all their land with articles wanted by the savages. There are signatures and names to prove it.

City Wants Cut

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—A bill to authorize the city of Yonkers to collect revenue from the Empire City Harness Race Track has been introduced again in the Legislature. An identical measure died last year in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. Senator William F. Condon and Assemblyman Malcolm Wilson, Yonkers Republicans, are the sponsors. The measure would license the track at a maximum rate of $3,500 per racing day, and levy a city tax on the track's parimutuel betting pool of one per cent on the first $200,000 of the daily handle; 1.5 per cent on the next $350,000 and two per cent on wagering over $550,000. No increase would be made in the present 15 per cent "bite" on the total amount bet. The city's levy would be deducted from both state and track shares of the 15 per cent.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—New Yorkers were cautioned today not to get excited if they hear sirens wailing at noon Saturday. It won't be an air raid alarm—just New Jersey testing. Civil Defense Director Arthur W. Wallander said New Jersey sirens would be tested at that time each Saturday, beginning this week.

South, East Get More Cold Weather, Central Less

(By The Associated Press)

It was more chilly weather for the south and eastern seaboard states today but mild weather continued over the central part of the country.

The cool air extended from Maine to Florida and over the Gulf states into eastern Tennessee and eastern Kentucky.

Temperatures dropped to 13 above at Asheville, N. C., early today—while Chicago's low was 35. It was 30 at Cross City, Fla., 24 at Rome, Ga., 20 at Columbia, S. C., and 30 at Atlanta. The lowest reading in the east was zero at Rumford, Me.

The rise in temperatures extended from the Rocky mountain states to the Great Lakes Region. Readings were around normal west of the Rockies.

There were a few cold spots in the midwest—3 above at Grantsburg, Wis., and 5 above at Fargo, N. D.

Most of the country had fair weather. Light rain fell over Arkansas and southeast Missouri while another wet area was along the Pacific coast from Oakland to Seattle.

Walti Pays Fine For Failing to Give Animals Due Care

Walter Walti, 53, of Oliverea, who was arrested on December 26 for failure to provide food and water for impounded animals, paid a fine of $50 before Justice Ray Smith of Phoenicia Tuesday evening.

Walti was arrested by A.S.P.C.A. agent Ray Winne and Trooper Ray Dunn following a complaint made to S.P.C.A. officials of Delaware county.

It was charged Walti has 15 dogs, eight cats, a number of rabbits, pigeons and chickens and had failed to provide food and water for them for five or six days while he was away from the premises.

Following his arrest an adjournment was taken to permit consulting an attorney. Tuesday evening when the case came before Justice Smith, five witnesses were sworn by the complainants, including two members of the Delaware county S.P.C.A.

The S.P.C.A. paid $13.60 for food for the animals for four days. This will be assessed against the owner of the animals, Agent Winne stated.

Siren Kayoes Gulls, Heard Five Miles Away

San Francisco, Jan. 10 (AP)—San Franciscans complained they couldn't hear the sirens in a recent air raid test.

So Rear Adm. A. G. Cook, civil defense director, arranged a private test yesterday of a super-sized World War 2 siren at Ocean Beach. Although the 140 horsepower gianted to the sea, the test was anything but private.

Seagulls, stunned by sound waves, crashed to the beach . . . housewives rushed outdoors . . . a police station was flooded with anxious inquiries from as far as five miles . . . the ground shook 25 feet away.

Engineers said the siren's shriek was 100 times as loud as that of an ordinary fire siren.

Pooh, said Admiral Cook, the thing can be tuned 10 times louder!

P.S.: The city has five and plans to order 12 more.

No Warnings in Formosa

Taipei, Formosa, Jan. 10 (AP)—The U. S. Embassy said today Americans in Formosa are not being warned to send dependents home as was done in Hong Kong. "No such advice has been given here nor is it contemplated," an embassy spokesman said. Some 600 U. S. families in Hong Kong, British crown colony bordering on Red China, are being urged to remove dependents because of "the deterioration of the situation in the Far East." There are about 220 American citizens on this Chinese Nationalist island. Formosa is separated from the Red China mainland by a 100-mile strait.

Man, Woman Arrested

Miami, Fla., Jan. 10 (AP)—The FBI today announced the arrest of a man and a woman in connection with the $21,093 robbery of a Belleville, N. J. bank Monday night. Mason said a girl friend, identified as Marion Goodford, a former bank employe, had been arrested in Belleville.

Buboltz was contending at the time that residents of his ward have had tax increases on their homes amounting to about $100. He did not mention the period of time involved in the increases, but said "they want to know from me why taxes are being increased, and I want to know from the mayor and the city assessor why the assessed valuation is dropping so that I can answer them."

'To Get Information'

The alderman said he would get the information himself if necessary, and then turning to Alderman-at-large Kelly, who, he observed, was from the Fourth Ward, he asked: "I'd like him to take the floor here tonight and give you his opinion as to the effect of these high taxes on the people of our ward."

Argument started after Alderman Cole gave his minority report on the budget which was boosted by $27,134.75 just prior to Jan 1 to provide for the $240 instead of the previously offered five per cent bonus. The move increased the tax rate by 88 cents.

Bonus Is Favored

Democrats favored the $240 bonus, but asked for cuts in other budget items, and Third Ward Alderman Edwin Radel (D), who said at the budget hearing that he favored the higher bonus, last night asked that city laboratory employes be included.

Robert C. Cullum, (R) 12th Ward, noting Radel's stand last night on the bonus proposal, declared: "There's one point I'd like to make clear . . . It was the mayor and the mayor alone, who increased the bonus to $240, and it is the mayor alone, who deserves the credit."

Cole's minority report said that at the public hearing Radel had asked for information on the city's decreased assessed valuation, and the mayor said tax exempt properties, demolitions and veterans exemptions were largely responsible.

Contention on Assessment

Cole contended that in two years "we have had an assessment loss of $1,268,000, but during the same period $6,200,000 in building permits were issued." He understood, he said that some building represented was not completed prior to assessment roll time, but added, "Without detailed figures from the assessor's office, I am willing to assume, for the present, that as high as 50 per cent of those permits might not have been assessable when the tax roll was completed."

On this basis, he contended $3,000,000 might be added to the total assessed valuation, but instead of an increase, "we find a decrease in the last two years of $1,200,000." He contended that by his way of figuring, "we are $4,200,000 short in assessed value."

"Our budget this year," Cole argued, "shows that during 1950, the city departments will, at the end of this year, have a deficit of $23,579.80, compared with the 1949 deficit of $2,500." The mayor predicted in his 1950 message that the city would not be operating at a deficit, he said.

Resolution Referred

A resolution by Cole outlining his major points on the total assessed valuation asked "that the mayor instruct the assessor of the City of Kingston to report to this board not later than April 30, 1951, on each item of assessment loss commencing with Jan. 1, 1949 to date, and the reason therefor."

It was referred to the laws and rules committee.

Cole's resolution also asked that the assessor "further report any increases in assement with the reason therefor, made in the same period of time, and that he include therein any new assessments made within that same period of time, and that in each instance, he set forth in that report the name of the person and the address against whom the loss or increase appeared."

Cole's resolution asking for another recessed meeting was defeated by a party vote. It contained recommendations that the amount allowed for the mayors' conference dues be reduced to $275, that the item for special officers (railroad crossing) be omitted, and that the "miscellaneous trucking and labor" item be deleted.

Requests Are Made

It asked also that an item for repairs "under municipal buildings be reduced to $5,000," that employes of the laboratory receiving less than $5,000 a year be included in the cost-of-living bonus, and that under estimated revenues "laboratory receipts" be increased by the amount which will be received from the state and/or the county, as a refund of laboratory expenses paid by this municipality."

Cole contended that "It is respectfully submitted that by the deletion or elimination of the above mentioned items, we cannot only grant the bonus in question to all city employes who are permanent, full-time employes and affected by the cost-of-living bonus, but we can save money for the city of Kingston, and reduce the tax rate."

Hits At Resolution

Alderman Bruck hit at Cole's resolution by stating that the alderman appeared to assume that something deliberately wrong had been done in making up the budget, and he asked "If you've got something let us know."

Cole said that under his resolution the city assessor had until April 30 to explain questions in the resolution.

Buboltz, a member of the Building and Supplies committee said he was under the impression that there was money left in the building fund from last year's budget, and an argument developed on the point of the extent and purpose of the fund, during which Bruck contended that sums now included for building repairs would not be necessary if the "previous administration had not let the buildings go when they needed repair."

Bruck cited the recreation center as an example, and when Buboltz said the money was raised in two bond issues, Cole added that the minority also voted on those. Bruck then asked if it wasn't more feasible to handle building repairs "little by little" with money from direct taxes.

Bruck hit at Cole's request for omitting the item on special policemen by contending that they were needed to "give the people police protection during the Broadway crossing elimination."

Would Agree To Need

Alderman Storms, also a member of the building committee, said that anyone who had made a tour of city buildings would agree to the need for certain repairs.

Radel Takes Credit

Alderman Radel, who said he had made a suggestion at the budget hearing that a $240 instead of a five per cent bonus be given to city employes, said that at the organization meeting Jan. 1, "I was very happy to learn that the mayor had followed my recommendation and included a $240 increase for city employes."

"Also at the public hearing, Dr. Derman of the city laboratory," he continued, "pointed out that exclusion of city laboratory employes was considered by them as being unjust and might be termed discrimination. While I do not agree with Dr. Derman on some increases already given to employes in higher brackets—in one instance almost 80 per cent in one year, I do agree with him that the exclusion of employes in lower brackets is unjust."

The departments given the increase were entitled to it, Radel said, and he added that "After that meeting I was under the impression that the lower salaried employes of the city laboratory would be included in this raise."

The alderman said he hoped for a favorable report from the finance committee on his suggestion.

Radel later said he believed action amounting to "railroading the budget," would show discrimination against the laboratory workers. He favored a recessed meeting as did Seventh Ward Alderman J. Richard Smith (D) who said he thought minority suggestions "should at least be shown to the mayor for his consideration."

A letter in behalf of city laboratory employes similar to the one recently published in the Freeman was read at the session. It stressed that a cost-of-living bonus to laboratory employes would cost $5,280, and of this the cost to local taxpayers would be only $2,640.

Truman Will Call

lowed by specific tax-boosting recommendations in a special message before February 1.

The President's recommendations will deal with fiscal 1952, beginning July 1, which will be the first year in which the speeded up rearmament program will show real impact on the budget.

"The President is going to say that the taxes to protect revenues would be levied to balance the budget," Snyder added.

Earlier there had been talk on Capitol Hill that taxpayers might get a year's breather before taking on any new tax burden although the chairman of the House Tax Committee said he expects new levies to be enacted by midsummer.

Fire Board Names Burr President

Frank Burr was elected president of the Board of Fire Commissioners last night. He replaces Henry F. Kelsch, who was recently reappointed to the board.

Committees named by the president were: Apparatus and equipment, Charles Derrenbacher, chairman, and Commissioner Kelsch; supplies, Burr, chairman, and Derrenbacher; building and fire alarm, Kelsch, chairman, and Burr.

Chief Joseph L. Murphy was appointed clerk.

Recreation Money, Zoning Change, Bus Certificate Are Passed by Aldermen

Despite long controversy before adoption of the city budget, the Common Council at its recessed meeting last night legislated to obtain $2,158 from the state for the city recreation department, approved the Irving Levine zoning change for 65-67 Hunter street, and consented to issuance of a certificate of public conveyance for the DeForest Shaver bus line.

A favorable report of the Laws and Rules Committee on the Levine petition stirred short controversy and was adopted by a party vote with Ninth Ward Alderman Paul J. Schatzel (R) refraining from voting.

The petition sought the zoning change for the erection of a garage and storehouse for the operation of a burlap bag business and a recent public hearing was held on the petition.

Seventh Ward Alderman J. Richard Smith (D) arose in opposition as soon as City Clerk Bernhardt S. Kramer finished reading the committee report and before his vote on the proposal Smith contended that "the general consensus was definitely against," the zoning change. Smith attempted to get the privilege of the floor for John Glennon, 62 Fair street, who wanted to speak against allowing the zoning change.

Alderman-at-large Joseph Kelly said a vote had been called for on the committee report, that a public hearing had been held on the petition, and that under council rules he was not allowed to grant privilege of the floor at the time. Glennon, however arose and continued to voice opposition, explaining that he realized he was out of order, but he wanted in some way to go on record as opposing the zoning change.

Tenth Ward Alderman James J. Carroll (D), backed Smith's attempt to move against adoption of the committee's report.

The request to get the council to authorize the recreation department to execute the necessary forms to obtain $2,158 from the New York State Youth Commission," was submitted by Andrew J. Murphy, 3rd, superintendent of the department.

The amount is the city's share of state aid for recreation projects in 1951.

Asks Traffic Changes

A resolution by Alderman Carroll asking for changes in traffic regulations along the Broadway crossing detour, was referred to the Traffic Control Committee.

The resolution mentioned that the council committee and the Chamber of Commerce had recommended reconsideration of the committee's original resolution.

It asked that Smith avenue from O'Neil to Prince street, be made one-way, eastbound; and Ten Broeck avenue, one way, westbound, from Grand to O'Neil street.

It requested also that detour signs be erected at Cornell street and Broadway to direct eastbound traffic from Broadway to Smith avenue, thence right to Smith avenue to Grand street, thence right on Grand street to Broadway, and that detour signs be placed at Grand street and Broadway to direct west and northbound traffic to TenBroeck avenue, thence left on TenBroeck to O'Neil and left on O'Neil back to Broadway.

Many local residents have expressed dissatisfaction with present detour regulations, the resolution said.

Other Resolutions

Legislation on the bus lines's application made for DeForest Shaver by Attorney Augustus Shufeldt, covers runs between the towns of Esopus and Rosendale and the city, including bus routes formerly operated by Fred Spinneweber.

A letter from Robert R. Rodie, 83 Albany avenue and a resolution by First Ward Alderman Hirschell Mayes asking for extension of a restricted parking area on Albany avenue, were referred to the traffic committee.

The letter explained that cars parked on the north side of the street near the intersection of his driveway, block the view of a driver making either a left or right turn from the driveway. He said this had been the cause of a recent accident there, and asked that a no-parking area be extended 200 feet east from the Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

GOP Policy Committee, said establishment of such a defense force on the Russian border "is much more likely to bring war than it is, ever, to bring peace."

"I am all in favor of saying definitely to the Russians," Taft declared, "'if you attack western Europe, you will find yourself at war with us.'"

He said the question is "how can we best protect Europe?" His answer was for the United States to build "sea and air power that can dominate the world."

Asserting that "this is no isolationist policy," Taft said it would be a mistake to take too many men out of industry and place them in the army. . . . It is no cinch to take 5,000,000 men out of industry and still go on and produce the things you have to produce," Taft said.

Want Tax for Cards He Sent as Greetings

Boston, Jan. 10 (AP)—Phil Shea's unique Christmas card is giving him a tax headache.

Shea, a Boston Associated Press editor, had 200 greeting cards printed to resemble theatre tickets.

The tickets invited friends to enjoy two big features, a "Merry Christmas" and A Happy New Year" at the so-called Yule-Tide Theatre."

But then from the collector of internal revenue Shea got a form letter calling for the customary ticket tax.

"It looked to me like a good idea at the time," said Shea, in his answer to the collector. "But now I'm not so sure, especially since receiving from your office Form 729."

Form 729 orders that a tax be paid on theatre tickets.

Up to Air Force Now In Plane Plant Strike

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 10 (AP)—The next move in the strike of 4,700 production workers of Fairchild aviation division workers here will probably have to come from the Air Force or the Federal Conciliation Service.

Management and union sources declining to be quoted directly, indicated today they are buckling down to wait each other out.

The plant here manufactures the C-119 transport plane, the "Flying Boxcar" of Korean war use. The dispute is over the company's merit system of pay increases.

The CIO-UAW Union would do away with it in favor of a "progression system" of automatic increases. The strike began Monday morning.

Quadruplets Are Born

Pontiac, Mich., Jan. 10 (AP)—Quadruplets were born today to Mrs. Anne Rosebush, 34, wife of a 36-year-old stonemason. St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital reported the two boys and two girls and their mother were "doing fine." Kenneth, the father, said there were four other little Rosebushes, ranging from seven to 15 years of age. The Rosebush family lives in nearby Oakwood, Mich.

der to take the new car of Lennox. After stealing the car Webster says he drove to Wurtsboro and then became confused and drove over 209 to point near the Queens highway where he came upon a car in which two young women were riding. He started to follow them over back roads but they lost him and he then wandered over back roads and finally came to Kingston. He then drove to Albany and abandoned the Lennox car between Amsterdam and Schenectady and hitch-hiked to Utica where he was arrested.

Webster had little difficulty financially, since it is charged he cashed a check for $251 he had taken from Lennox and also used a credit card of Lennox to purchase gas.

Lennox had picked up Webster as a hitch hiker at Geneva where Lennox had been to visit his son who attends college there.

Hints Tax 'Breather'

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—A key senator hints the nation might get a year's breather before it has to shoulder a new tax burden, but the chairman of the House Tax Committee said today he expects new levies to be enacted by midsummer. Meanwhile, Senator Anderson (D.-N. M.) said in a speech "high and responsible officials" have discussed the possibility that 10 to 15 billion dollars a year would have to be raised through a national sales tax. President Truman said in a letter to Senator Byrd (D.-Va.) yesterday the nation must be taxed "until it hurts." Byrd also suggested that a sales or transaction tax would be necessary.

South, East Get More Cold Weather, Central Less

(By The Associated Press)

It was more chilly weather for the south and eastern seaboard states today but mild weather continued over the central part of the country.

The cool air extended from Maine to Florida and over the Gulf states into eastern Tennessee and eastern Kentucky.

Temperatures dropped to 13 above at Asheville, N. C., early today—while Chicago's low was 35. It was 30 at Cross City, Fla., 24 at Rome, Ga., 20 at Columbia, S. C., and 30 at Atlanta. The lowest reading in the east was zero at Rumford, Me.

The rise in temperatures extended from the Rocky mountain states to the Great Lakes Region. Readings were around normal west of the Rockies.

There were a few cold spots in the midwest—3 above at Grantsburg, Wis., and 5 above at Fargo, N. D.

Most of the country had fair weather. Light rain fell over Arkansas and southeast Missouri while another wet area was along the Pacific coast from Oakland to Seattle.

Walti Pays Fine For Failing to Give Animals Due Care

Walter Walti, 53, of Oliverea, who was arrested on December 26 for failure to provide food and water for impounded animals, paid a fine of $50 before Justice Ray Smith of Phoenicia Tuesday evening.

Walti was arrested by A.S.P.C.A. agent Ray Winne and Trooper Ray Dunn following a complaint made to S.P.C.A. officials of Delaware county.

It was charged Walti has 15 dogs, eight cats, a number of rabbits, pigeons and chickens and had failed to provide food and water for them for five or six days while he was away from the premises.

Following his arrest an adjournment was taken to permit consulting an attorney. Tuesday evening when the case came before Justice Smith, five witnesses were sworn by the complainants, including two members of the Delaware county S.P.C.A.

The S.P.C.A. paid $13.60 for food for the animals for four days. This will be assessed against the owner of the animals, Agent Winne stated.

Siren Kayoes Gulls, Heard Five Miles Away

San Francisco, Jan. 10 (AP)—San Franciscans complained they couldn't hear the sirens in a recent air raid test.

So Rear Adm. A. G. Cook, civil defense director, arranged a private test yesterday of a super-sized World War 2 siren at Ocean Beach. Although the 140 horsepower gianted to the sea, the test was anything but private.

Seagulls, stunned by sound waves, crashed to the beach . . . housewives rushed outdoors . . . a police station was flooded with anxious inquiries from as far as five miles . . . the ground shook 25 feet away.

Engineers said the siren's shriek was 100 times as loud as that of an ordinary fire siren.

Pooh, said Admiral Cook, the thing can be tuned 10 times louder!

P.S.: The city has five and plans to order 12 more.

No Warnings in Formosa

Taipei, Formosa, Jan. 10 (AP)—The U. S. Embassy said today Americans in Formosa are not being warned to send dependents home as was done in Hong Kong. "No such advice has been given here nor is it contemplated," an embassy spokesman said. Some 600 U. S. families in Hong Kong, British crown colony bordering on Red China, are being urged to remove dependents because of "the deterioration of the situation in the Far East." There are about 220 American citizens on this Chinese Nationalist island. Formosa is separated from the Red China mainland by a 100-mile strait.

Council Adopts

and any alderman due consideration." The alderman nodded in assent.

Buboltz was contending at the time that residents of his ward have had tax increases on their homes amounting to about $100. He did not mention the period of time involved in the increases, but said "they want to know from me why taxes are being increased, and I want to know from the mayor and the city assessor why the assessed valuation is dropping so that I can answer them."

'To Get Information'

The alderman said he would get the information himself if necessary, and then turning to Alderman-at-large Kelly, who, he observed, was from the Fourth Ward, he asked: "I'd like him to take the floor here tonight and give you his opinion as to the effect of these high taxes on the people of our ward."

Argument started after Alderman Cole gave his minority report on the budget which was boosted by $27,134.75 just prior to Jan 1 to provide for the $240 instead of the previously offered five per cent bonus. The move increased the tax rate by 88 cents.

Bonus Is Favored

Democrats favored the $240 bonus, but asked for cuts in other budget items, and Third Ward Alderman Edwin Radel (D), who said at the budget hearing that he favored the higher bonus, last night asked that city laboratory employes be included.

Robert C. Cullum, (R) 12th Ward, noting Radel's stand last night on the bonus proposal, declared: "There's one point I'd like to make clear . . . It was the mayor and the mayor alone, who increased the bonus to $240, and it is the mayor alone, who deserves the credit."

Cole's minority report said that at the public hearing Radel had asked for information on the city's decreased assessed valuation, and the mayor said tax exempt properties, demolitions and veterans exemptions were largely responsible.

Contention on Assessment

Cole contended that in two years "we have had an assessment loss of $1,268,000, but during the same period $6,200,000 in building permits were issued." He understood, he said that some building represented was not completed prior to assessment roll time, but added, "Without detailed figures from the assessor's office, I am willing to assume, for the present, that as high as 50 per cent of those permits might not have been assessable when the tax roll was completed."

On this basis, he contended $3,000,000 might be added to the total assessed valuation, but instead of an increase, "we find a decrease in the last two years of $1,200,000." He contended that by his way of figuring, "we are $4,200,000 short in assessed value."

"Our budget this year," Cole argued, "shows that during 1950, the city departments will, at the end of this year, have a deficit of $23,579.80, compared with the 1949 deficit of $2,500." The mayor predicted in his 1950 message that the city would not be operating at a deficit, he said.

Resolution Referred

A resolution by Cole outlining his major points on the total assessed valuation asked "that the mayor instruct the assessor of the City of Kingston to report to this board not later than April 30, 1951, on each item of assessment loss commencing with Jan. 1, 1949 to date, and the reason therefor."

It was referred to the laws and rules committee.

Cole's resolution also asked that the assessor "further report any increases in assement with the reason therefor, made in the same period of time, and that he include therein any new assessments made within that same period of time, and that in each instance, he set forth in that report the name of the person and the address against whom the loss or increase appeared."

Cole's resolution asking for another recessed meeting was defeated by a party vote. It contained recommendations that the amount allowed for the mayors' conference dues be reduced to $275, that the item for special officers (railroad crossing) be omitted, and that the "miscellaneous trucking and labor" item be deleted.

Requests Are Made

It asked also that an item for repairs "under municipal buildings be reduced to $5,000," that employes of the laboratory receiving less than $5,000 a year be included in the cost-of-living bonus, and that under estimated revenues "laboratory receipts" be increased by the amount which will be received from the state and/or the county, as a refund of laboratory expenses paid by this municipality."

Cole contended that "It is respectfully submitted that by the deletion or elimination of the above mentioned items, we cannot only grant the bonus in question to all city employes who are permanent, full-time employes and affected by the cost-of-living bonus, but we can save money for the city of Kingston, and reduce the tax rate."

Hits At Resolution

Alderman Bruck hit at Cole's resolution by stating that the alderman appeared to assume that something deliberately wrong had been done in making up the budget, and he asked "If you've got something let us know."

Cole said that under his resolution the city assessor had until April 30 to explain questions in the resolution.

Buboltz, a member of the Building and Supplies committee said he was under the impression that there was money left in the building fund from last year's budget, and an argument developed on the point of the extent and purpose of the fund, during which Bruck contended that sums now included for building repairs would not be necessary if the "previous administration had not let the buildings go when they needed repair."

Bruck cited the recreation center as an example, and when Buboltz said the money was raised in two bond issues, Cole added that the minority also voted on those. Bruck then asked if it wasn't more feasible to handle building repairs "little by little" with money from direct taxes.

Bruck hit at Cole's request for omitting the item on special policemen by contending that they were needed to "give the people police protection during the Broadway crossing elimination."

Would Agree To Need

Alderman Storms, also a member of the building committee, said that anyone who had made a tour of city buildings would agree to the need for certain repairs.

Radel Takes Credit

Alderman Radel, who said he had made a suggestion at the budget hearing that a $240 instead of a five per cent bonus be given to city employes, said that at the organization meeting Jan. 1, "I was very happy to learn that the mayor had followed my recommendation and included a $240 increase for city employes."

"Also at the public hearing, Dr. Derman of the city laboratory," he continued, "pointed out that exclusion of city laboratory employes was considered by them as being unjust and might be termed discrimination. While I do not agree with Dr. Derman on some increases already given to employes in higher brackets—in one instance almost 80 per cent in one year, I do agree with him that the exclusion of employes in lower brackets is unjust."

The departments given the increase were entitled to it, Radel said, and he added that "After that meeting I was under the impression that the lower salaried employes of the city laboratory would be included in this raise."

The alderman said he hoped for a favorable report from the finance committee on his suggestion.

Radel later said he believed action amounting to "railroading the budget," would show discrimination against the laboratory workers. He favored a recessed meeting as did Seventh Ward Alderman J. Richard Smith (D) who said he thought minority suggestions "should at least be shown to the mayor for his consideration."

A letter in behalf of city laboratory employes similar to the one recently published in the Freeman was read at the session. It stressed that a cost-of-living bonus to laboratory employes would cost $5,280, and of this the cost to local taxpayers would be only $2,640.

Truman Will Call

lowed by specific tax-boosting recommendations in a special message before February 1.

The President's recommendations will deal with fiscal 1952, beginning July 1, which will be the first year in which the speeded up rearmament program will show real impact on the budget.

"The President is going to say that the taxes to protect revenues would be levied to balance the budget," Snyder added.

Earlier there had been talk on Capitol Hill that taxpayers might get a year's breather before taking on any new tax burden although the chairman of the House Tax Committee said he expects new levies to be enacted by midsummer.

Fire Board Names Burr President

Frank Burr was elected president of the Board of Fire Commissioners last night. He replaces Henry F. Kelsch, who was recently reappointed to the board.

Committees named by the president were: Apparatus and equipment, Charles Derrenbacher, chairman, and Commissioner Kelsch; supplies, Burr, chairman, and Derrenbacher; building and fire alarm, Kelsch, chairman, and Burr.

Chief Joseph L. Murphy was appointed clerk.

Recreation Money, Zoning Change, Bus Certificate Are Passed by Aldermen

Despite long controversy before adoption of the city budget, the Common Council at its recessed meeting last night legislated to obtain $2,158 from the state for the city recreation department, approved the Irving Levine zoning change for 65-67 Hunter street, and consented to issuance of a certificate of public conveyance for the DeForest Shaver bus line.

A favorable report of the Laws and Rules Committee on the Levine petition stirred short controversy and was adopted by a party vote with Ninth Ward Alderman Paul J. Schatzel (R) refraining from voting.

The petition sought the zoning change for the erection of a garage and storehouse for the operation of a burlap bag business and a recent public hearing was held on the petition.

Seventh Ward Alderman J. Richard Smith (D) arose in opposition as soon as City Clerk Bernhardt S. Kramer finished reading the committee report and before his vote on the proposal Smith contended that "the general consensus was definitely against," the zoning change. Smith attempted to get the privilege of the floor for John Glennon, 62 Fair street, who wanted to speak against allowing the zoning change.

Alderman-at-large Joseph Kelly said a vote had been called for on the committee report, that a public hearing had been held on the petition, and that under council rules he was not allowed to grant privilege of the floor at the time. Glennon, however arose and continued to voice opposition, explaining that he realized he was out of order, but he wanted in some way to go on record as opposing the zoning change.

Tenth Ward Alderman James J. Carroll (D), backed Smith's attempt to move against adoption of the committee's report.

The request to get the council to authorize the recreation department to execute the necessary forms to obtain $2,158 from the New York State Youth Commission," was submitted by Andrew J. Murphy, 3rd, superintendent of the department.

The amount is the city's share of state aid for recreation projects in 1951.

Asks Traffic Changes

A resolution by Alderman Carroll asking for changes in traffic regulations along the Broadway crossing detour, was referred to the Traffic Control Committee.

The resolution mentioned that the council committee and the Chamber of Commerce had recommended reconsideration of the committee's original resolution.

It asked that Smith avenue from O'Neil to Prince street, be made one-way, eastbound; and Ten Broeck avenue, one way, westbound, from Grand to O'Neil street.

It requested also that detour signs be erected at Cornell street and Broadway to direct eastbound traffic from Broadway to Smith avenue, thence right to Smith avenue to Grand street, thence right on Grand street to Broadway, and that detour signs be placed at Grand street and Broadway to direct west and northbound traffic to TenBroeck avenue, thence left on TenBroeck to O'Neil and left on O'Neil back to Broadway.

Many local residents have expressed dissatisfaction with present detour regulations, the resolution said.

Other Resolutions

Legislation on the bus lines's application made for DeForest Shaver by Attorney Augustus Shufeldt, covers runs between the towns of Esopus and Rosendale and the city, including bus routes formerly operated by Fred Spinneweber.

A letter from Robert R. Rodie, 83 Albany avenue and a resolution by First Ward Alderman Hirschell Mayes asking for extension of a restricted parking area on Albany avenue, were referred to the traffic committee.

The letter explained that cars parked on the north side of the street near the intersection of his driveway, block the view of a driver making either a left or right turn from the driveway. He said this had been the cause of a recent accident there, and asked that a no-parking area be extended 200 feet east from the Albany Avenue Baptist Church.

GOP Policy Committee, said establishment of such a defense force on the Russian border "is much more likely to bring war than it is, ever, to bring peace."

"I am all in favor of saying definitely to the Russians," Taft declared, " 'if you attack western Europe, you will find yourself at war with us.' "

He said the question is "how can we best protect Europe?" His answer was for the United States to build "sea and air power that can dominate the world."

Asserting that "this is no isolationist policy," Taft said it would be a mistake to take too many men out of industry and place them in the army. . . . It is no cinch to take 5,000,000 men out of industry and still go on and produce the things you have to produce," Taft said.

Want Tax for Cards He Sent as Greetings

Boston, Jan. 10 (AP)—Phil Shea's unique Christmas card is giving him a tax headache.

Shea, a Boston Associated Press editor, had 200 greeting cards printed to resemble theatre tickets.

The tickets invited friends to enjoy two big features, a "Merry Christmas" and A Happy New Year" at the so-called Yule-Tide Theatre."

But then from the collector of internal revenue Shea got a form letter calling for the customary ticket tax.

"It looked to me like a good idea at the time," said Shea, in his answer to the collector. "But now I'm not so sure, especially since receiving from your office Form 729."

Form 729 orders that a tax be paid on theatre tickets.

Up to Air Force Now In Plane Plant Strike

Hagerstown, Md., Jan. 10 (AP)—The next move in the strike of 4,700 production workers of Fairchild aviation division workers here will probably have to come from the Air Force or the Federal Conciliation Service.

Management and union sources declining to be quoted directly, indicated today they are buckling down to wait each other out.

The plant here manufactures the C-119 transport plane, the "Flying Boxcar" of Korean war use. The dispute is over the company's merit system of pay increases.

The CIO-UAW Union would do away with it in favor of a "progression system" of automatic increases. The strike began Monday morning.

Quadruplets Are Born

Pontiac, Mich., Jan. 10 (AP)—Quadruplets were born today to Mrs. Anne Rosebush, 34, wife of a 36-year-old stonemason. St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital reported the two boys and two girls and their mother were "doing fine." Kenneth, the father, said there were four other little Rosebushes, ranging from seven to 15 years of age. The Rosebush family lives in nearby Oakwood, Mich.

Hunt Still On for

der to take the new car of Lennox. After stealing the car Webster says he drove to Wurtsboro and then became confused and drove over 209 to point near the Queens highway where he came upon a car in which two young women were riding. He started to follow them over back roads but they lost him and he then wandered over back roads and finally came to Kingston. He then drove to Albany and abandoned the Lennox car between Amsterdam and Schenectady and hitch-hiked to Utica where he was arrested.

Webster had little difficulty financially, since it is charged he cashed a check for $251 he had taken from Lennox and also used a credit card of Lennox to purchase gas.

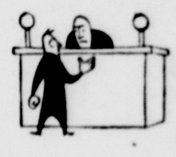

Lennox had picked up Webster as a hitch hiker at Geneva where Lennox had been to visit his son who attends college there.

Hints Tax 'Breather'

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—A key senator hints the nation might get a year's breather before it has to shoulder a new tax burden, but the chairman of the House Tax Committee said today he expects new levies to be enacted by midsummer. Meanwhile, Senator Anderson (D.-N. M.) said in a speech "high and responsible officials" have discussed the possibility that 10 to 15 billion dollars a year would have to be raised through a national sales tax. President Truman said in a letter to Senator Byrd (D.-Va.) yesterday the nation must be taxed "until it hurts." Byrd also suggested that a sales or transaction tax would be necessary.
